Using Short Period Cycles To Predict UFO Flaps

Received this from "alt.alien.visitors" August 10 at 05.10 local Danish time (GMT + 2 hours).

Just in case anyone is interested...

I've written two articles in the MUFON UFO Journal regarding the possible prediction of UFO waves or flaps by utilizing apparent cycles that seem to parallel this aspect of the UFO phenomena.

I presently have an article on the internet regarding predicting UFO flaps using short period cycles measured in days rather than in months or in years (as was the case in my two previous articles).

My present investigations have lead me to the conclusion that on the last three Fridays during the month of August one should be more likely to witness a UFO than at any other time during this month.

If you are interested in learning more of this possibility, even if you are a doubting Thomas, please give my article a look and come to your own conclusion. Perhaps you might be interested in forming a sky search on one of these nights (many groups are already planning to do just that on Friday, August 29th, organized by UFO Magazine UK). Here is the URL:

In the mean time, don't miss the Perseid meteor shower in the early morning hours of August 12th.
