The abstract must be written in English and should not exceed 250 words. It should be presented in a single paragraph that includes: a brief background outlining the importance of the topic and the research gap (optional), the main objective of the study, a concise description of the methods used (research design and approach without excessive detail), the main results or findings, and the conclusion along with key implications or recommendations. At the end, include Contribution as the only label, which explains the main contribution of the study, the new insights generated, its potential for future development, and its relevance to the focus and scope of the journal.

The introduction must consist of a concise, sequential overview of the general background and a review of the literature (the "state of the art"); aim to cite at least five relevant sources that justify the novelty or uniqueness of this study compared to previous research (typically 2–3 paragraphs). Additionally, the introduction must outline the research problem and methodology. The final paragraph of the introduction should state the article's objective. (Font: Cambria, size 12)

METHODS

The method used in this research is the case study method (Kuswarno, 2009). The case study in question, as expressed by Deddy Mulyana, is a comprehensive description and explanation of various aspects of an individual, a group, an organization (community), a program, or a social situation.

As a method of qualitative research approaches, this method was chosen because, as Bogdan and Bikien (1982) said, this research focused on one setting or object. To be precise, this research focused on the process of talqin dhikr as a method of da'wah in the TQN of the Suryalaya Islamic Boarding School (hereinafter referred to as TQN PP. Suryalaya).

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

This section consists of the results of research and how they are discussed. The results obtained from research must be supported by adequate data. The results of the study must be the answers to the problem and the research objectives stated earlier in the introduction.

In the discussion must contain: 1. Whether the data research results have been analyzed (not raw data). Can be presented with tables or figures other than verbal presentation to clarify. This section usually answers the question what and how? 2. Does the author provide a scientific interpretation for each of the results or findings the author presents (why)? 3. Are the results of the study consistent with what was reported by other researchers (what else)? Or is there a difference?

Results and Discussion are capitalized, spaced 1 space apart and bolded. If you use supporting tools, simplify the tables and use open tables, and map images are more focused on the object under study and not too large file size and complicated (sought in JPG format); tables and figures are numbered sequentially. Do not use location when referring to Figures or Tables, for example: "... presented in Figure 1 below." But simply "... presented in Figure 1." or "..... (Figure 1)."

The use of subtitles in the discussion in accordance with the purposes of the discussion. Example:

Sub Chapter 1 (Times New Roman 12, bolded)
Sub Chapter 1
Sub Chapter 2
Sub Chapter 3
Sub Chapter 2 (Times New Roman 12, bolded)
Sub Chapter 3 (Times New Roman 12, bolded).

CONCLUSION

Conclusions should be answers to research questions, and not expressed in statistical sentences. The explanation is in the form of flowing paragraphs which contain links between one content and another. Use terms that have substantive meaning in the field of science and avoid statistical / methodological technical terms.
