Dear [Mention the name of the recipient],

On (Mention the d/m/y), (Mention the name) will graduate from the (Mention the name of school). To commemorate the occasion, a photo of her is taken in front of her apartment (Mention the place). (Mention the disease) response allowed for a virtual presentation of the ceremony. (Mention the name) will attend (Mention the university name) to finish her (Mention the degree).

I began my adventure (Mention the numbers) years ago as a (Mention the department of study) at the (Mention the name of the university). The most challenging course was the first one I took in medical school (Mention the name). And on my first exam for the course, my biggest nightmare came true.

The exam was in the middle when my laptop battery died. In order to find an appropriate charger, I had to pause the exam. I kept hoping and praying that the battery on this ancient and failing laptop would last until the end of the exam instead of concentrating on the solutions to the challenging human anatomy questions.

(Mention the name of the foundation) foundation, which works to improve the lives of people with spinal cord injuries, provided one such outstanding contribution.

So now, four years later, upon my graduation from medical school, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all the foundation's staff members who work tirelessly to improve the world for people like me.

I'm grateful.
