

BRYNN THE SEA ANGEL

By: bailey girardin

Once upon a time, there was an angelfish named Brynn. Brynn lived deep down in the dark sea. She was happy but also very lonely. Because she lived so deep down in the sea, she couldn't make any friends. One day, when she was looking for a friend, she found a little worm named Nora.

"Please don't eat me!" said Nora.

"I won't eat you!" replied Brynn. "Will you be my friend?" Brynn asked curiously. Nora sat there, confused.

"Is this some sort of trick?" said Nora. "You're not going to eat me?"

"Of course not, as long as you will be my friend," said Brynn. Then the two friends went off to play.

"Gosh, it's getting late, and I'm getting hungry. I better get home. Bye!" said Brynn as she swam to find some larvae to snack on. As she was swimming away, she heard Nora yell, "Watch out!" Brynn turned around, confused.

"What's wrong?"

"There was a shark right above your head!" said Nora.

"I don't have any predators," Brynn said, relieved. Then Brynn continued on her way. Once Brynn saw some larvae, she camouflaged herself, jumped out, and grabbed it. After she ate it, she went home to go to bed. She was so excited that she made a new friend. She went to bed immediately so she could play with her new friend tomorrow.
