

Chai Love (Man)

Description: Chai Love tells the story of a Man and Woman who stumble upon each other one day in a coffee shop. While Woman isn't outwardly interested in finding someone, Man is open to love in even the most unexpected place. Man is sweet and outgoing, while Woman is more reserved, but their shared wit leads them to find they have more in common than they think.

MAN: May I sit?

WOMAN: Why?

MAN: I told you, the wai —

MAN AND WOMAN: ...waiter isn't coming to my table

WOMAN: Yeah yeah okay. Why not just move up to a closer one so he sees you?

MAN: Well, you're closer.

WOMAN: Without me.

MAN: Well he wouldn't come to any of those either.

WOMAN: Why?

MAN: Cause why would the fresh meat deny getting eaten by a woman as pretty as yourself?

WOMAN: (not getting the point) I don't think ANY meat WANTS to be eaten. What's your point?

MAN: (exclaiming) The point is you're beautiful and I didn't see anybody sitting with you and you looked kind of lonely and I mean I'M kind of lonely and I wanted to talk to you and... yeah.

WOMAN: So this has nothing to do with the waiter?

MAN: I mean he also hasn't come to my table and I do believe my odds of getting served before sundown will be vastly higher if I sit here. With you.
(WOMAN makes face)

Because it's closer!
(WOMAN doesn't change face)

And you're...
(2 separate words. Awkward)

Pretty! Cute.

WOMAN: Alright! You win, you can sit in the lonely-chair.

MAN: Thank you.

WOMAN: So, what's your deal?

MAN: Pardon?

WOMAN: What's your deal? Why are you here?

MAN: Oh, just in the area.

WOMAN: I've never seen you in the area.

MAN: Maybe we've just never overlapped!

WOMAN: Maybe you're a stalker.

MAN: Wouldn't you have seen me if I'm a stalker?

WOMAN: Not if you've been in some type of disguise.

MAN: So then why wouldn't I be in a disguise now?

WOMAN: Cause you're going to murder me and you wanted me to see you in your true form.

MAN: Geez, you're a little forward today.

WOMAN: Today!?

MAN: Kidding! Just kidding.

