

Week 1: NEWSPAPER ANALYSIS

Directions: Choose one news article every day for ten days. The article must come from a reliable source such as CNN, ABC, Washington Post, New York Times, Baltimore Sun, Politico Magazine, Time Magazine, etc, The Wall Street Journal. Be as specific as possible with all of your answers, referring back to the news story in your answers when appropriate.

1. What was the headline(title) of the story? The title of the story is 'Such a simple thing to do': Why positioning Covid-19 patients on their stomachs can save lives

2. Discuss the effectiveness of the headline in summarizing the story and getting the reader's attention. This guy helped me because I knew it was about the things that are happening now

3. Briefly describe the factual content of the story.

- Who: people who get sick.
- What: The virus that is affecting.
- When: Tue April 14, 2020.
- Where: hospital in new york.
- Why: because people did not protect themselves quickly.
- How: because the virus can spread to their body.

5. Facts in a news story are supposed to be arranged from most to least important. Do you believe the author did this effectively? Why? Or why not? because I think he knew how he was going to organize his news, And I think I thought it was better that way

6. Discuss the accuracy of the facts used in the story. How do you know that the sources used were reliable and accurate? Provide specific examples. I think this story was somewhat reliable because this is based on what this current mind is and this is something clear for us to understand

7. In what way did the use of quotations....

- add to the credibility of the story? I think the statements are more credible because the narrator of the news gathers important information about the new case that is taking place around the world since it causes all people to die due to the virus called covid-19, for which there are many people who are getting sick and every time it's hard to control it.
