

Isis and Nephthys are quite stunning silver sisters, some would refer to them as head turners. They seem to look very similar, wouldn't you agree? Of course that is because they are twins. The pair can be distinguished by the color of the strange markings on their skin. Isis dons golden markings, while Nephthys bears the dark blue markings like a beautiful moonless midnight.

While similar in looks, they have only a few personality traits in common. Isis and Nephthys share charisma, loyalty, and charm, and little else besides their origin story and how they came to bear those strange markings on their bodies.

Nephthys is loyal to her sister almost to a fault. No matter what she will remain at her sister's side and defend some of her more rash decisions. She is also loyal to her most trusted inner circle of friends, while it is a small circle, one can count on Nephthys being there if she is needed.

Nephthys, unlike her sister, does not like to use her charisma and charm to get things she desires. She would rather avoid talking to others as it makes her feel extremely anxious. In hindsight, she would rather stay away from the crowds and observe their actions. By being so observant Nephthys has gained a lot of knowledge on everything from selecting the perfect grazing areas to how to execute the perfect scouting missions. Using her observations proves useful when thrust into certain situations, often at the cause of something her sister has done, and thus makes her a very powerful individual. Yet, she rarely uses her observations on her own due to her many insecurities.

After obtaining the markings Isis and Nephthys noticed that for three days twice a year their personalities changed to mimic the other. In simpler terms, Nephthys took on Isis's headstrong, jump into action, think about results of decisions later while Isis took her observant behavior and her insecurities. This swapping of personalities takes place when Sirius Rises on June 25th and during Ra Reborn on December 25th. During the swap the personality changes are subtle on the first day, most prominent on the second day (June 25 or December 25), and then begin to fade on the third day. Freaky, oh definitely yes! But they have learned to live with this strange swapping..

Nephthys may seem extremely shy, but once she learns to trust and earns the trust of others, she begins to open up. There may be very few people in her inner circle but she is quite chatty and confident around them, unlike how she is around strangers and the majority of others not including her sister.
