

Black Kettle - Waylon Black Crow - OSEU #2 and #5

So those are things that...as we grow up in this way of life, all our native children... we give them some...give them names and... their native names. It's like mine's Black Kettle. LAKOTA WORD. Black Kettle. And my... back in the day in the history... our family tree... my grandpa Black Kettle... he was the peacemaker.... peacemaker of the native nation. So even today, I go around try to make peace with people because we all come from one man. We hit somebody else, we're hurting. We're not hurting him...we're hurting the Creator... because we come from him. That's what they always tell us. We respect ourselves, respect ourselves. Remember where you come from. You come from the Creator. So those are things that we always try to tell. Teach the young...walk this Red Road. I know it's not easy but...
