“Good evening, MY APPALACHIA. Well, as these election results came in... I have and still do have mixed feelings. Unfortunately, my friend Cube was not successful in his gubernatorial run and Governor GoogMaster has won re-election. This is truly devastating for our state, but I am confident that the future's still bright and turn back some of the craziness that is apart of the “Goog” agenda. Another setback is that we failed to deny the democrats a supermajority in the state assembly. We did better than we were at the beginning of the campaign cycle, but we couldn't make the difference to keep some of the more radical parts of the Democratic agenda out of our state.

My plans are to work with the democratic assembly and hopefully make some progress on things that matter. We need to balance the budget and stop the three hundred billion dollar deficit that is coming our way since Googcare doesn't pay for itself. We need to stop the income taxes that are higher than the income taxes levied by Washnigton.

I want to thank these specific areas of the state for turning out and supporting my campaign:

Thank you Ohio!

Thank you North Carolina!

Thank you Tennessee!

Thank you to every single voter who came out in full force this election!

I acknowledge that under normal circumstances I would be conceding this election, but only due to our misfortune in the assembly elections have I won this race. The race was close and would have been decided by less than 2 points. I understand that the majority of voters did not choose me, but I promise I will lead and do my best to help all the voters. I will do my best to make a difference for all Greater Appalachians and I thank the many voters who split tickets to make my race closer than the rest of races. I promise that I will try my best not to let you down.
