University of Rhode Island's Students Take Charge! Program
Teacher Interview Questions

Thank you for having us in your health classroom this year! We appreciate your help implementing this program with your students. We value your input; we would appreciate it if you could please answer the following questions about the program/curriculum.

About this year…

1. What effect, if any, do you feel the program had on the students regarding:
    a. Increasing student knowledge about fruits/vegetables?

    b. Increasing student knowledge about their ability to change their school environment?

    c. Increase student empowerment or confidence to ask for fruits/vegetables at school?

    d. Improving student's consumption of fruits/vegetables?

2. What strategies or components, if any, from the curriculum worked well?

    a. Would you recommend these strategies or components be sustained and/or expanded? How so?

OVER

3. What strategies or components, if any, from the curriculum did not work well?

    a. How would you improve those strategies or components that did not work well?

4. What are some barriers, if any, that you encountered with the program/curriculum?

About future use of the program…

5. If you were given this curriculum to implement on your own with next year's students,
    a. How likely would you be to implement the full 8 lessons?

        i. If you are likely to implement the full 8 lessons, please describe how and when you'd implement the curriculum into your classes.

        ii. If you are not likely to implement the full 8 lessons, please describe what parts you would be able to do, if any, and what parts you would not be able to do.

b. What changes, if any, would make this program/curriculum easier to implement and maintain in your school?

6. This year, the students worked on recipe testing and changing their food environment. What other sort of nutrition-related programs would you like to see in the future?

Anything else to add…

7. Please add any other comments, suggestions, and/or concerns about The Student's Take Charge! program/curriculum.

Thank you!
