

Hi, originally I was going to just stay silent and post art of different media that isn't mcyt because I felt that making a post about this was meaningless and everyone loses interest in the media eventually. But there are things I really want to discuss when it comes to my experience in this community as an artist and my reasoning for departure, especially with the amount of threats, accusations, and questions in my strawpage about specific things that I'll say here.

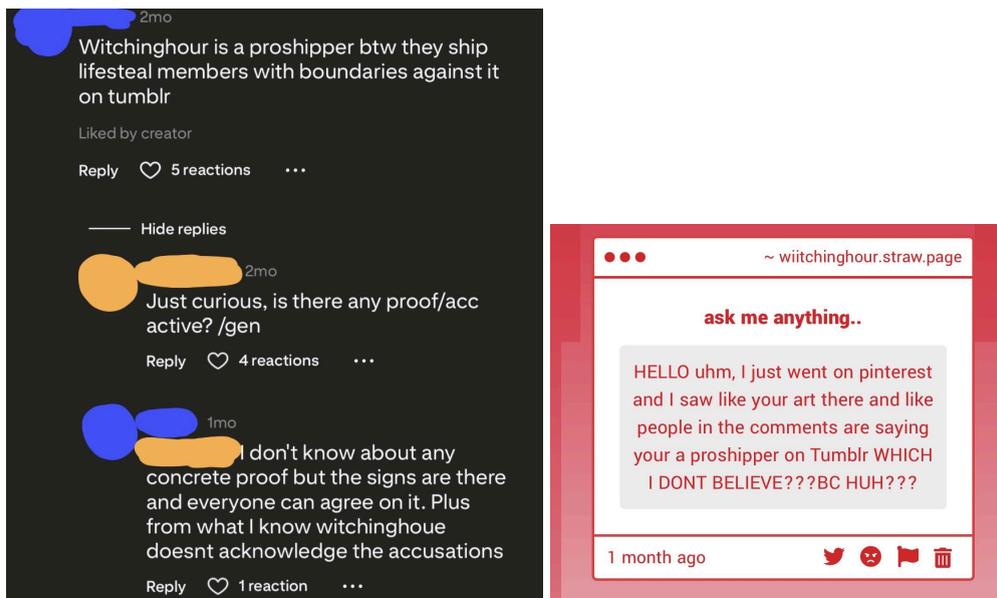

Also, I do wanna say that there might be grammatical errors and sentences that don't make sense, I tried my best explaining so please forgive me, english is not my first language.

I've been into mcyt for longer than 8 years, but in the topic of lifesteal and uu, i've been into lifesteal for 3-4 years and into uu ever since it first started since it aligned with lifesteals media and the appearance of some of the ccs. I've seen this fandom since it was a very small community, in which the community we had at the time was very sweet and fun to communicate and share your fanwork to, that's what's fun about a small community because it felt like you didn't have to preserve your thoughts due to differentiating opinions or have so many people look down at you. The one thing I loved the most was sharing my artwork to the community and seeing people take inspiration in my pieces or designs, or use them for something. I've met so many good mutuals and friends from this fandom and that's one thing I won't regret when engaging in this community, but the more the fandom grows, the more toxic it becomes and the less I want to engage in it.

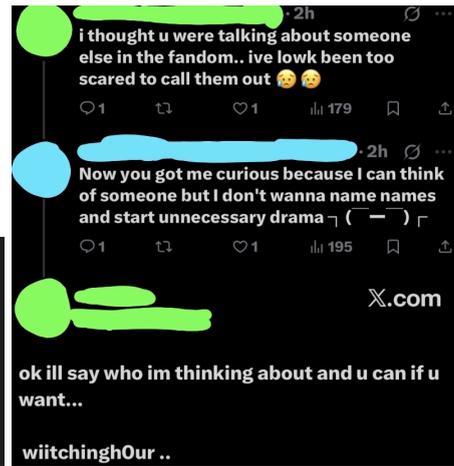

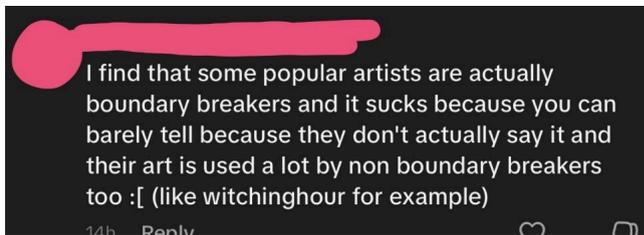

For the past year, I've been heavily conflicted with the thought of whether I should just leave the fandom because of how bad it's become whether you see it that way or not. This was an interest that I had for so long and didn't want to let go, but to see the many people in this media pushing down artists work, 'cancelling' people for different beliefs and values in a topic, encouraging meanspirited comments about others, questioning or accusing people for something not harmful or never done in the first place, and the many parasocialism of people with artists and ccs does not align to the fun of a fandom. Some of you people believe that what you are doing is for the good and safety of the community but instead it only makes it worse and creates a barrier in what you believe is 'right' and what is 'wrong' and makes you perceive those deemed 'wrong' as horrible people or different, while all they are doing is what a fandom is made for, no one should be argued because of what they do is different from your values, and I've usually always stayed silent about my view because I know how people will think but neither do they have to know my privacy and what I think just like anyone else, but there are always some who deem in wanting to know everything about me whether its for a 'gotcha' or to push me out. I am a singular person just like any of you, I draw because I loved what was once my biggest interest for so long. You do not have the right to budge in my privacy and my close ones and know what my beliefs are or what I do elsewhere, it does not affect you, it does not affect anyone, and I never intended it to be affected to anyone at all, you are the one who is bringing things to light when it does not matter and defeats the purpose of a safe environment if that's what you want to call it.

I've been accused of many things such as proshipping and boundary breaking on ships, and I will finally get to this because I've been asked and accused of this so many times. I am not a proshipper. And I never was, nor do I know where you people have gotten this from. I never engaged in proship content and I have previously mentioned my dislike for these spaces and asked for people who are in these bubbles to not use my content, but I am well aware that they are still being used and because of this the last option I had to do was to ignore it and let them be, I can't do anything about that but look the other way and that is my choice. Please don't accuse me of such things if you do not have concrete evidence to back up your claim and only have the excuse of "there were signs" or provide art of mine that isn't even proship or you use false context clues of the artwork to say that its problematic when it is not intended to be that way.

If there is something you do not like about me and what I post whether it's my main or somewhere else, that does not give you the right to harass me or go to the public about it. I really do not want to go more in depth about this so I hope it's obvious what I am talking about(boundary breaking ships). The account is deleted for my privacy because some of you people kept bringing it up or breaking my one and only wish to not use those works outside of the platform. I always ensured to never bring these up because there was no point in doing so as it is my business and no one else's to budge into. I do not plan on making another account or reuploading my work from what i made there, I will stay private on these, whatever was made there is gone and wont be reuploaded unless someone has them which i dont care what you do with them but please don't use it as a way to get to me. But one thing I will mention is that you people who are very orthodox on this topic treat others that engage on these elsewhere as different animals, I know most of you will disagree to me on this subject but please if you dont like something, dont bring it to light, leave them alone as they will leave you alone. It is a community, don't push people out.

I'm not going to show any proof for this part for the privacy of these people mentioned, so if you don't believe me then that is fine. I was given information about a blocklist going around between people that I know, the blocklist containing artists who make mcytshipping content and I was also included in them. When I looked through the document I felt that this making was made in a negative light to treat these people like they are awful, and seeing that the majority mentioned were people that I know very well makes me upset because these artists are sweet and have the same reason in being in the fandom, creativity and fun. Upon seeing this and more evidence I can't help but feel that it was very dehumanizing for this to be made. It is cruel to make things like this and make people engaging on these topics be painted as criminals. I can't fathom but beg you people, please stop harassing and going around the public whether it's about shipping or another topic you do not agree with just because your favorite artist does one of them. Artists are not engines to produce things that only you like, they have the freedom in creating other things because that's what they prefer to do if that's what they find fun. You do not have that right in going around telling them what to do.

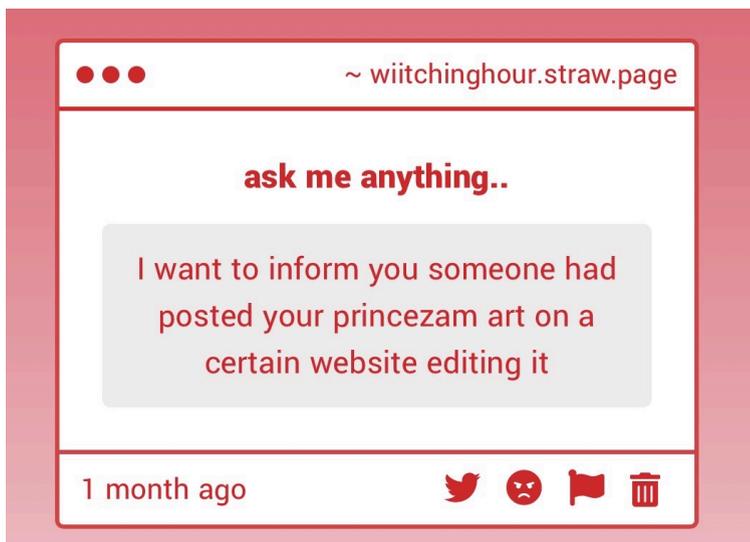

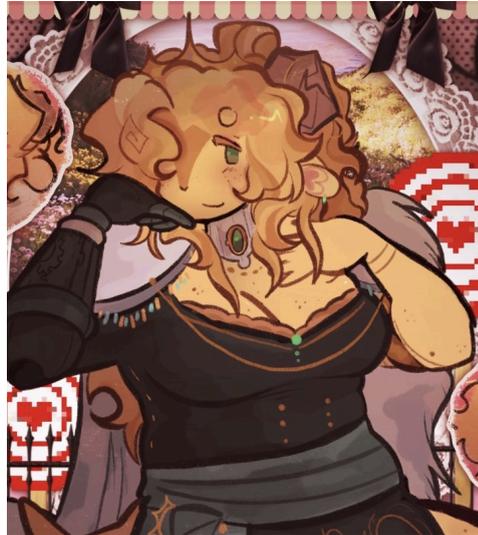

A few weeks ago (as im editing this its been a month now), i got a strawpage warning me about my artwork being edited on a specific website, I do not know who it was that told me this and how they knew in the first place and why they were on that site, but I saw that one of my ls pieces was fed to ai and edited to look like nsfw (making the character be nude) with gross comments under supporting it. The person who made these got banned and the edited works were taken down so do not bother finding them, they most likely made this just for attention. This was honestly my last straw in how much I've seen from the fandom that I felt like I do not deserve to be treated in such a way like this; I've seen so much negativity, arguments, dislikes, and so much more in this community that I don't feel safe in the environment anymore. What was once my absolute favorite space turned into toxicity and hatred the more it grew, in fact it makes me actually dislike the media and it hurts. Every artwork I make feels like a chore rather than the fun of it and it really sucks, because why do people demand to know so much about you or immediately judge you just for one thing? I can't even post a drawing without so many judgement or immediate questions about it or my past works. None of my artwork has meaning unless I say so, because how do you come to the conclusion that, for example, poke holes in saying that my voidjump art is proship? Because of the way they are posing or what? Because the hints are there? I can't even draw anything without someone pointing out false words because you are all way too bored nowadays that you just want to spark anything just for the fun of it.

Edited work:

Original work:

With all of this said, and of me considering this for many months, I think it's about time I move on and leave this fandom. Not mcyt as a whole, just this media(lifesteal and uu) in specific. I've seen too much mistreatment with others and myself as I feel that we are put in such high expectations rather than be part of this community like any other fan for fun and to share the things you love. I won't be drawing lifesteal or unstable universe anymore, and I do not have any plans on returning. It's all become nothing but poking the blame at each other or calling people names or thinking "look at what this person said, so weird" instead of ignoring them or saying it in private at least. You are the same as your other fanfriend, do not mistreat each other whether you like them or not and if you really have the need to say something, do it in private unless it's for a valuable reason and friendly fire. Other than that, the only time they (as in uu and ls characters) will be drawn is whether it's a commission or for someone.

I don't really know how else to close this off, but please respect my wishes. I only want positive outcomes and migrate to other media that I can share my artwork in. This main account of mine will always stay as an art account, I will no longer say any other opinion related thing and I won't expand out to other socials in art sharing, not even my private accounts as I am well aware that my work has also been leaked, I mean it when I say I am going to stay private on my life and what I do. So please, please leave me alone and please stop constantly painting me as a horrible person. I don't want my words to come out as a vent, but if I need to be honest and get my words out, I have been dwelling on this situation for so long because it's affected my mental health and the people around me because of how negatively talked over I was to many people. It came to the point that I felt that no one liked me at all because of how shunned I was getting by the community and even some of my own mutuals that I began having a hard time trusting anyone because of the fear that it'd only lead to trying to get information out of me and use it against me. Every time I tried moving on, I'd get harassed or mentioned negatively, I was super close on not even releasing this document because I was afraid of what would happen. But I've been trampled over so much and I don't want to move on quietly while knowing how affected I was. So again please stop hurting me, stop leaking my work or my own words to spaces that I clearly had too much trust in. And stop painting me as a horrible person because I don't want people to think of me in that light, and I never do, these months I had to act like I don't care but I genuinely did. I want people to love my work and create mutualship, I never intended for anyone to have hatred over me. It's already done enough damage to me and I really want to move on, I only wanted to have fun and make bonds with others, I don't know what you want from me.

Remember that I am a minor. I don't want to be seen as an idol, I don't want to disappoint anyone, and I don't want to be treated like an adult that should already know better as I am still learning as a child. This is my own decision, I will not be answering any strawpages, replies, or qrts about this, or at this point I'll most likely remove the link because a majority of what I have been sent were negative comments or reminding me of things that I already know, do not ask me to do anything just because you said so.

There are definitely a lot more things I could say or wish I could talk about whether it's what I've seen or my experience, but I've been making this document for almost two months now and this is all that I can remember to spill out. I am my own person, you can see all of this whether negative or positive, I do not care. It's okay if you only wanted to see ls/uu content and wish to unfollow or if you believe that your opinions align elsewhere than mine.

If you've read this far thank you, if you skimmed through this, TLDR; I am leaving the uu/ls fandom because I believe it is not safe for me due to my personal experience as an artist here and as the community continues to grow more toxic. That's it

Bye

