Dear Committee Members:

I support creation of a USPS stamp honoring parenting education.

This stamp will bring well deserved attention to the significant contributions parenting education has made to American society for over a century. By fostering wellbeing in individuals and families, parenting education helps create vibrant and productive communities where everyone can thrive.

Parenting education is not just “would-be-nice-to-have”. It is essential. However, it occupies a cultural blind spot that we must address across all age levels and in all sectors. Creating a stamp honoring parenting education will go a long way toward rectifying this unfortunate situation.

Thank you for considering this important issue.
