Doctrinal Mastery Review 7

One of the purposes of doctrinal mastery is to help you learn how to apply doctrine taught in the scriptures to situations you or those around you may face. This lesson will give you opportunities to practice applying some of the doctrine you have studied this year to your life.

Helping others

Imagine that you minister to a family in your ward whose father recently lost his employment. This father is extremely discouraged and has stopped going to church, praying, and reading the scriptures. There are three children in this family: a 17-year-old young woman, a 15-year-old young man, and a 10-year-old girl. The 10-year-old and her mother attend church occasionally. The two teenagers used to attend frequently, but as their father's unemployment has continued, they have stopped coming.

As you review the following list of doctrinal mastery passages, think about the emotions and challenges each person in this family might be facing. Think about which truths from these scriptures could be most helpful to each person and why.
