TheGAM3Report Frequently Asked Questions

-Welcome/ Getting Started

-How do I use the YouTube dashboard?

The YouTube Dashboard gives you ample access to helpful information that is meant to help you help your channel, and get a better and broader understanding of how your channel is doing. To get to the Dashboard, head over to the VIDEO MANAGER and click on the DASHBOARD tab, or you can check it out by visiting youtube.com/dashboard. At first glance you will notice your current subscriber count, how many lifetime views your video has, and the date you joined YouTube. Let's explore each of the sections you will notice when you first log in to the Dashboard.

VIDEOS

The videos shows your recent upload to your channel (the most recent 4). This is a great place where you can edit the info about your video, simply by hovering over the thumbnail and clicking on EDIT. Take a look around once you've clicked the EDIT button. You can make changes to your video's metadata, title, privacy settings, and more.

COMMENTS

The comments section shows recent comments on all of your videos. This is the place where you can chose to respond to comments. Clicking on the REPLY button will take you to the video page, and a box will appear where you can comment or respond on your video.

ANALYTICS

Probably the most powerful tools you'll find on the Dashboard, the analytics displays high-level analytics for your channel. Here are two metrics you will see:

- Video views in the last 30 days
- Subscriber change in the last thirty days Both metrics are shown in a line graph format, and if you click on them you will be able to get even more detail. Note: It may take at least 5-7 days to begin populating once you have been partnered with us.

WHATS NEW

In this section, you will see recent information as it regards to YouTube. YouTube updates this section regularly.

-How Do I bulk update my videos?

YouTube has recently changed its policy on bulk updating. Once you join TheGAM3Report Network, our CMS team will automatically run a bulk update on your channel. This will allow for your content to be claimed and monetized. After the initial update, it is your responsibility to claim any and all additional content. We highly encourage you to do this as soon as you upload a new video as videos tend to monetize the most during the first 24 hours of being uploaded to your channel.

There are two ways to claim your content on YouTube:

1) WHEN UPLOADING NEW CONTENT
- when you are uploading a new video, while in the UPLOAD MANAGER click on the CLAIMING OPTIONS tab

2) WHEN CLAIMING ALREADY UPLOADED CONTENT
- Open up the VIDEO MANAGER, click EDIT (located besides the video) and then click on the CLAIMING OPTIONS tab.

-How do I collaborate with other channels?

The best way is to log on to the TheGAM3Report Dashboard forum! We have tons of topics going and lots of room for you to meet fellow YouTubers. Feel free to take a look around there (link at the top) and post if you're interested in collaborating.

-Who owns my content after I join?

You do. TheGAM3Report will always be a creator-first company and we do not believe in limiting the creative freedom of our partners. During your partnership with TheGAM3Report, TheGAM3Report has the right to monetize your content but ultimately you the partner holds ownership of your content. TheGAM3Report has no control or access to what “likes” or “Favorites” you have on your channel, and never will.

-What is monetization?

Monetization is the process of converting something into legal tender. In the case of YouTube, monetizing videos is the conversion of advertisements played on partners videos which then generates revenue for the Network and you.

-Can I livestream? How do I enable this feature?

Yes! YouTube has recently allowed partners to activate livestreaming on their own. Here's how you can get started with this feature:

1. Log into your YouTube account.

2. Click on your YouTube username in the upper right-hand corner and select “Settings” from the drop down menu.

3. On the “Overview” tab, under “Links” click on the link marked “Live Streaming”.

4. You will be prompted to read and accept an agreement and then enable live.Once enabled, you will have the Basic Live Features.

-Payment/ Financials

-I don't understand my first payment?

First, it's important to note that your first payment includes your earnings from the month you joining TheGAM3Report. If you became a partner at the end of the month, it's possible you might see less earnings since the payment is not for a full calendar month. Also, your payment includes the revenue split between you and TheGAM3Report as outlined in your contract.

-Can I request a hold on my payment?

Yes. Please email thegam3reportyt@gmail.com with "Payment hold" in the subject line of your email.

-PayPal (what is it, how do I use it?)

PayPal is a secure method of sending and receiving money throughout the world. We offer this as a payment method for our international partners. To sign up for PayPal, visit www.paypal.com with your preferred email address.

-Claiming money owned in Paypal, what does that mean?

When you log into PayPal.com, there will be a notification stating you have a payment pending. This is how TheGAM3Report will send your payment. Look for this notification and follow the on-screen instructions for claiming your payment.

-What is/is there a payment threshold?

Yes. Your payments must be more than $50 in order to be issued. We will hold your payments until you reach this $50 threshold, at which point we will send it out via your selected payment method.

-What do I do if I haven't received a payment?

If you haven't recieved your payment, please first remember that your earnings begin the date you are officially added to our CMS. If you were just partnered with us last month, please be aware that your payment will be sent out next month (one month after the earning period). If you have been a partner with us for more than several months, please email our support team at TheGam3reportyt@gmail.com with "Missing Payment" in the subject line. If you have PayPal, please check your PayPal account for any payments that are waiting to be claimed.

-When do i first get paid?

TheGAM3Report follows the same payment schedule as YouTube. Payments are sent out between the 1-15th, one month after the earning period. For example, you will receive payment for your January earnings at the beginning of March. You can view your estimated monthly earnings on your YouTube analytics page: (http://www.youtube.com/analytics). Keep in mind it takes 5-7 days to populate and the estimated total is before the revenue split between you and TheGAM3Report Network. Your monthly earnings are dependent upon an assortment of factors including (but not limited to) your country of residency, content classification, and audience volume. On average the channels that come aboard to TheGAM3Report Network monetize at a higher rate before any earnings are divided.

Note:Your payments will be held until your earnings exceed the $50 threshold. TheGAM3Report has lowered YouTube's traditional threshold by 50% as a courtesy to our partners.

-I just changed my payment method, when would I receive payment via the new method?

Changing your payment method can take up to 30 business days after we have recieved your "change of payment" form. Because of this, it's very likely that you will not receive a payment via this new menthod in the time for your next pay period, but should receive it by the following pay period.

-I received a paper check but I have direct deposit?

We apologize for any confusion. Your first payment will always be sent by check. Depending on your banking institution, it may take up to 1-2 pay periods for your direct deposit to get confirmed and get started.

-Why don't I have any estimated earnings for my video?

The first thing you want to do is make sure there are ads playing on your video. If there aren't any ads playing, it's possible that your video still needs to be monetized and claimed. If your video has been claimed and monetized, it could take UP TO 7 days for your earnings to begin to show up. Unfortunately we have no control over this timeframe. If it has been longer than seven days, please ensure there are no claims filed against your video (i.e. Copyright). You can do this by going to the VIDEO MANAGER when you are logged in to your YouTube account. If it turns out you have copyright claims on your video, please resolve or dispute the issue if you feel like it's a valid dispute. If there are no thrird party claims, please email thegam3reportyt@gmail.com.

-Why haven't I received a payment form?

Typically your payment form is sent within the first 7-10 days of you being partnered with us. This goes for other referral sites as well. If you signed up using TheGAM3Report, your payment forms were included with your initial contract/application.

NOTE:please check your JUNK/SPAM folders for this form.

-Can I get an estimate of what I would make each month? (delay, CPM vs RPM)

Your monthly earnings are dependent upon an assortment of factors including but not limited to your country of residency, content classification, and audience volume. On average the channels that come aboard to the TheGAM3ReportNetwork monetize at a higher rate before any earnings are divided. -What is a strike?

A strike is a negative mark issued by YouTube against a channel for violating the Terms of Service. YouTube currently operates on a three-strike format - once a channel has accumulated three strikes*, the account is closed.

There are two types of strikes:
Community: Issued when a channel violates the YouTube Community Guidelines.
Copyright: Issued when a channel violates the YouTube Copyright Guidelines.

*Community and Copyright strikes accumulate independently.

-How do I remove a strike / can TheGAM3Report help?

TheGAM3Report might be able to help you figure out if your strike is legitimate. If you send us a screenshot of the strike and the video URL, we will reasonably advocate for you if the strike is legitimate.

-What is copyright?

In short, Copyright is when someone creates an original, tangible piece of work. The ownership of said copyright works are exclusive to the owner and content creator and gives them the right to use their work in a specific ways. Some examples of copyright are:

1. Video games and software
2. Plays and musicals
3. Audiovisual works: movies, TV shows, online creations

Ideas are not subject to copyright laws. In order to have something considered copyrighted, it must be tangible and it must be original. Names and titles, are NOT protected by copyright.

-How do I show I have permission to use music?

Typically when you upload and monetize videos, YouTube will ask you if you own the right to what's used in your video. You must have rights for everything you upload including music, photographs, movies and video game footage.

-I have a community strike, what happens now?

Community strikes are on your account for six months from the date you recieved it. According to YouTube, accruals result in the following:

First Strike: The first strike on an account is considered a warning.

Second Strike: If an account receives two strikes within a six month period, the ability to post new content to YouTube from that account is disabled for two weeks. If there are no further issues, full privileges are restored automatically after the two week period.

Third Strike: If an account receives a third Community Guidelines strike within six months (before the first strike has expired) the account is terminated.

-What is fair use?

Fair use is a copyright principle based on the belief that the public is entitled to freely use portions of copyrighted materials for purposes of commentary and criticism. For example, if you wish to criticize a novelist, you should have the freedom to quote a portion of the novelist’s work without asking permission. Absent this freedom, copyright owners could stifle any negative comments about their work.

-How do I appeal a copyright strike?

You may file a freeform counterclaim with YouTube if you feel like the strike should be removed. Visit www.youtube.com/yt/copyright/counter-notification-requirements.html for all information about filing a freeform counterclaim with YouTube. Additionally, you may fill out the webform by visiting the "Copyright notices" on your account.

-What happens to my partnership now that I have a strike?

If and when you receive a strike, you may be contact by one of our Copyright Support Specialists to get more information about the strike you recieved. If our team determines your strike was valid, your channel will be reevaluated and we will determine if we can keep you in our network. For all other questions about COPYRIGHT, please email thegam3reportyt@gmail.com with COPYRIGHT in the subect line.

-Aren't all games copyrighted? What can I do about my videos with gameplay?

The policies vary depending on the company that creates the video game(s). SOME may allow you to use their content with or without their permission. Feel free to check their license agreements to help determine if the video game is okay to be monetized or distributed commercially on sites like YouTube. Please keep in mind that you MUST have audio commentary over the video (this does not act as a guarantee for not receiving a copyright strike, but it does help your chances). Videos uploaded to YouTube that show gameplay only may not be accepted by YouTube for monetization.

-What kind of gameplay is appropriate?

Gameplay that is commercially released, is allowed to be distributed commercially, and that has commentary over the entire duration of the video is at a lower risk. Avoid uploading game trailers, as these get flagged very easily. It's important that you have monetization rights to all of the music also being used. If you have any questions about what is or is not acceptable, please check the video game publisher's website for licensing information.

-Your agreement with TheGAM3Report (in respect to copyright)

According to your contract with TheGAM3Report, it states:

9. Giving Us Your Word. You represent and warrant that: (i) you are the owner of all rights related to all content displayed on Your Channels, (ii) you have the right and power to license and/or sell such content, (iii) neither such content nor your use of Your Channels infringes upon the rights of any third party, and (iv) you have not granted anyone else the right or authority to act for you in any manner that would conflict with either party’s rights under this agreement.

-Claiming videos (what can I claim as mine?)

After you upload a video and request for it to be monetized, it's important that you have commercial rights to use all the content in your videos. Here's a link of what you can and can not claim: click here

Please note: TheGAM3Report is unable to extract or transfer funds from this account.

-Am I obligated to enable pre-rolls (or other advertisements)?

Yes. Our CMS team will run a bulk update when you are first added to our network and monetize all of your videos. After this, it becomes your responsibility to claim and monetize your content.

-What if I accidentally click an ad?

Clicking on your own ads is a violation of YouTube's TOS. Clicking one or two by accident likely won't cause your account to be shut down, but using methods to enhance your AdSense earnings is a direct violation of YouTube's terms of service.
