 - We are getting 2 class legendary again this set, which contribute to a worse f2p experience. Is it better for the game not to have strong neutral legendaries as decks become similar? Does kindering to f2p make the quality of the game lower by printing cards like patches which nearly all of hearthstone crafts
- Jeff B.
 - My theory is that since the third set is in play a shorter time, the Hearthstone design team feels that they have a bit more design space to play within. Look at last years Jade, Raza/Kazakus impacts in Gadgetzan - the third set of the Year of the Kraken. Do you think the Kobolds and Catacombs will bring a "crazier" set of cards than the previous Year of the Mammoth expansions (Un Guro & Lich King)?
