Hi [Manager Name],

I'm interested in continuing my professional development and driving value for our company by learning insights and frameworks designed for strong engineers. To do this, I signed up for Crushing Tech Education which offers system design and engineering management courses for engineers and technical managers.

Crushing Tech Education is an online platform that continuously creates content on advanced system design concepts and practical engineering management skills. It costs [Insert Cost].

Here's why I think Crushing Tech Education is a good fit:
- It has self paced courses, so it won't distract from my day-to-day work.
- I'll learn advanced system design practices via videos, diagrams, animations, and mind maps
- I'll be able to learn system techniques for different domains which will help me to apply the same approaches at work
- I'll be able to learn at my own pace at a fraction of the cost of other courses.

I am happy to provide a report of my key takeaways and recommendations to share with the rest of the team. If you have any further questions about the platform, feel free to email crushingtecheducation@gmail.com.

Could you please approve the reimbursement for this expense?

Best,
