Section 1:

What the piece is about?

This piece wasn't about anything in particular, it was about me learning and taking steps out of my comfort level.

Why did you choose to create this piece?

I chose to create this piece in order to find new ways to improve in things I like to do.

Explain the combination of your choices from menu "A" and menu "B"; why you chose that combination, what the work means to you, and what you hope the viewer will experience.

I chose to improve a skill and reproducible art. I chose these because I feel that it is important to improve whatever you do in life to its greatest extent. And I believe that if my art or art in general can make it out to more people then that is more people that art is affecting in a good way. I want art in general to help as many people as possible.

Section 2:

Describe the process you went through in order to create the piece. Planning, materials, research, etc.

In order to create this piece I did lots of planning and research. I went through and looked at all my favorite photographers and drew inspiration from them. I then went out to spots that were accessible to me and looked around to see what I could do. I then came back, put all my research together and wrote everything I wanted to accomplish in a notebook. And made a checklist so I would get it done.

What were the challenges?

The challenge for me was mostly the editing in photoshop I knew what I wanted to do but now how.

How did you deal with them?

I dealt with them by looking up how to do it, thanks to the internet anything and everything photoshop is there.

What were the successful parts?

The successful parts for me was my photography work, and finally finishing my edits on photoshop.

Describe them and why they worked.

I have done photography in the past which helped with that portion of the project and the editing came out nice because of the effort and time I put in it.

What are you happy with? Why?

I am happy with my final edits because I feel they show how much I worked.

Section 3:

Talk about what you learned while working on this piece. Your learning can be skill, understanding, problem solving, working out how to co-create with a partner, learning about how you use time, your goal setting (Did you choose an appropriate goal? Did it work for you? Too high? Too low?) or anything you learned about specific materials that you worked with.

I learned how to use photoshop, maybe not all of photoshop as it is a very big program. But I learned the basics and some of the harder skills.
