

4-H is Girl Scout and Boy Scout kind of put together, and stands for: head, hands, health, and heart. And it's this great organization that just pushes for better leaders for tomorrow, like the photoshoot. I got associated with 4-H when I was little and around third grade. My mom started a club in the student housing in St. Paul for the U of M, and all these kids from like different backgrounds, and we all just came together and formed a club, and we were called the CZT Huskies, and we did a lot of fundraising for Haiti when the tragedy happened, and then we did a lot of bike things, things on bike safety and that's how I got into it. And the school, I'm going to start a club, because I feel like the kids here would love it, especially with our community garden and our chickens and our bunnies and everything. And I feel like it'd be a great thing to have here at all, and it will teach kids how to be better leaders.
