Orthopedic Urgent Care near Reading: How To Know Whether It's An Emergency

Orthopedic injuries do not discriminate—they can happen to a loved one of any age or activity level at any time. Orthopedic injuries take many forms, are chaotic, and necessitate medical attention right away. In some circumstances, an orthopedic injury can easily be treated in an urgent care. These injuries include: sprains, strains, fractures and tears. However any orthopedic injury associated with loss of consciousness, a bone sticking through skin, or a high fever above 101 fahrenheit is best treated by an emergency department. For locals looking for providers of orthopedic urgent care near Reading, Rothman Institute is the reliable option.

An orthopedic urgent care facility will stabilize an individual's condition and provide any necessary diagnostic imaging such as x-rays, in addition to, an applicable treatment plan..

The Difference Between the ER and Urgent Care:

An individual needs to visit the Emergency Room (ER) at the nearest hospital when the condition is life or limb threatening. The purpose of visiting an orthopedic urgent care provider near Reading is to receive care from a specialist at any point, seven days a week, for orthopaedic injuries. The onsite consultation at an orthopaedic urgent care saves an individual time. Instead of waiting for an unknown span of time at the ER, a patient at an orthopedic urgent care facility will experience a wait time that resembles that of a doctor's appointment—just around 30 minutes approximately. On top of that, many insurance providers offer lower co-pays for urgent care evaluations than for an emergency room visit, but it is important to check with your specific provider for personalized estimates. The value of an orthopedic urgent care provider near Reading residents is the availability of a specialist without a prior appointment. In situations where an emergency occurs and quality care is needed right away, the Rothman Institute urgent care locations are a convenient and affordable resource.
