Global Studies Fellows Program Overview

Curricular Requirements

Two Core Courses

- Introduction to Global Studies (UNIV 190)
- One "Translating Worlds" Course (selected from the following):
  - World Literature 105: Introduction to World Literature
  - English 141: Reading World Literature
  - Art History 131: Early Art Histories
  - Art History 132: Later Art Histories

Two Courses in a Thematic Track

- ☐ Two courses in one of the following thematic tracks (including at least one 300- or 400-level):
  - Global Commerce, Politics, and International Relations (CPI)
  - Sustainability, Health, and Environment (SHE)
  - Global STEM (STEM)
  - Migration, Diasporas, and Urban Studies (MDU)
  - o Global Histories, Humanities, and Arts (HHA)

Two Courses in a Region

- Two courses in one of the following regions (including one 100- or 200-level course* and one 300- or 400-level):
  - Africa (AF)
  - o Latin America and the Caribbean (LA)
  - Europe (EU)
  - o Middle East and North Africa (ME)
  - South Asia and Central Asia (SA)
  - East Asia and Oceania (EA)

*A Global Studies Fellow may satisfy the requirement for a 100-200 level course through 1) a study-abroad experience, an internship abroad, or a faculty-led Winter or May Term study in the chosen region

Language

One 200-level course or above in a language other than English. (Students whose secondary schooling was in a language other than English may be certified as meeting this requirement through the Office of the Registrar, and in consultation with the director of English for Academic Purposes.)

Capstone Course

☐ A .5 credit GSFP Capstone Course

GSFP courses may also count towards majors and minors, general education, and other graduation requirements. GSFP credit for courses taken prior to joining the fellows program requires approval from the Director of the Global Studies Fellows Program. To request retroactive credit, please email the GSFP director.

Click here for a list of all GSFP courses offered, beginning with Spring 2024.

Co-Curricular Requirements

A Global Educational Experience

One of the following global or "glocal" educational experiences (a "glocal" experience involves an academic engagement with how global processes intersect with our local community):

- A semester-long international study abroad program with at least one course about the local region
- o A faculty-led Winter or May Term international study-travel course
- o A summer internship (global or "glocal")
- o A faculty-student collaborative research project (global or "glocal")

Global Insight Events

- ☐ Attendance at two GSFP "Global Insight" events each semester. These events may include:
  - o Lectures and workshops with visiting scholars
  - o Faculty and student panels on global learning topics
  - Films, readings, and performances on global learning topics followed by discussions
  - o Luncheons with alumni