Meet the Team Behind the Brand: Why People Always Come First at Mareno

When you think of Mareno, it is easy to picture top-tier professional kitchens and sleek Italian design. But if you take a step back and look at what really makes us tick, you won't see just stainless steel and machinery. You will see people. For over a century, we have been building a reputation in the catering world, but our biggest pride isn't what we make—it's who we are. As part of the global Ali Group family, we are lucky to be connected to 14,500 colleagues worldwide. Yet, no matter how much we grow, we stick to a very simple, down-to-earth rule: we are humans before we are workers.

If you ever drop by our main facility in Mareno di Piave—right next to the beautiful Prosecco hills—you will quickly realise that the real magic doesn't happen in the automated assembly lines. It happens in the chats between colleagues, the shared coffee breaks, and the way skills are passed down from seasoned pros to the younger generation. There is a deep, hands-on wisdom here that you simply cannot buy or fast-track; it is built over years of working side by side. Every single kitchen that leaves our factory has been shaped, checked, and cared for by over a hundred pairs of hands. Every team member plays a massive part in the result, and that is why we treat Mareno like a big, extended family. For us, looking after each other and bringing out the best in everyone's natural talents is what matters most.

To keep our team thriving, we are huge believers in continuous learning. We don't see training as a chore or a box-ticking exercise; we see it as the best way to invest in our people's futures. Our team is always updating their skills, learning how to master the latest tech while keeping that invaluable, traditional craftsmanship alive. And this love for learning doesn't stay locked inside our factory walls. Through our Mareno Training Centre and live workshops, our experts share what they know with the wider culinary world, too. By giving our people, the space and tools to grow, we make sure everyone feels confident, supported, and genuinely proud of their role.

But let's be honest: you can't look after your team's growth if you don't look after their well-being first. Creating a safe, healthy, and open workspace isn't just a corporate goal for us; it is a personal promise. We want our people to come to work feeling inspired and comfortable, and that means we have a strict, zero-tolerance approach to workplace hazards. Keeping our team safe and healthy is, and always will be, our number one priority.

This commitment is why we work so hard to maintain our international certifications, especially the UNI EN ISO 45001 for occupational health and safety, alongside our environmental and quality standards (ISO 14001 and ISO 9001). To us, these aren't just fancy certificates to hang on the wall or show off in a brochure. They represent a real, daily commitment to our work family. It means every workstation is carefully set up with the person in mind, every routine is designed to protect our team and our safety rules are constantly reviewed to make sure everyone goes home safe and sound at the end of the day.

By putting health and safety at the absolute centre of everything we do, we have built a workplace culture based on true mutual respect and peace of mind. Quality isn't a buzzword around here. It is the result of all those small, everyday choices to never cut corners and to always provide the safest, most supportive environment possible for our staff.

At the end of the day, Mareno isn't a faceless corporation. It is a group of passionate, hard-working people who care about what they do and who they do it with. Our true strength doesn't come from a logo on a machine; it comes from the energy, pride, and dedication of our team. We are far more than just a brand. We are a team.

Thanks for being part of our story and for trusting the people behind our name.
