Abstract. Provide an abstract in English, 4-5 lines long (13 pt, italic, justified, single line spacing, no paragraph indent). It should highlight the main theoretical and experimental results obtained, indicate potential practical applications, and other relevant details.

Keywords: 3-5 words or phrase, separated by semicolons, characterizing the research field (13 pt, italic, justified, single line spacing, no paragraph indent).

Conference Paper – 1 to 4 pages (including the section with information in English) – should be prepared in this template, replacing the explanatory text (main text, formulas, table and figure captions: Times New Roman font, 12 pt, justified, 1 cm paragraph indent, 1.15 line spacing, automatic word hyphenation).

In the introduction, outline the problem, highlight the relevance of the topic, briefly note the shortcomings of known methods for solving the problem with references to recent relevant studies, and clearly state the research aims.

The main part should describe the conducted research (indicating what was done).

The conclusions should specify the concrete results obtained.

Use of AI. Specify the name of the AI tool and its model, the specific purpose of its use, and the section in which the AI was used.

The text of the paper must be thoroughly edited, with all unfamiliar symbols and abbreviations explained. All figures and tables must have captions and be referenced in the text.

If a figure is created in Microsoft Word, all its elements must be grouped, with line thickness no less than 0.5 pt. Scanned images must have a resolution of 300 dpi.

The reference list (at least 3 sources) is ordered based on their mention in the text and formatted in APA style.
