James: Hi, welcome to the club. Can you remember the first time you danced? How did you feel?

I think that my first dance was when I was young. Although I can't be sure, I think it was on my sister's tenth birthday. I remember feeling fantastic because I loved the music playing. The thing is though that when I finished everyone was looking and I felt extremely embarrassed.

Marina: What are the most interesting places to visit near where you live?

I only live a few hundred meters from the sea and the beach, therefore the probably the best places to go to near where I live. The sea is usually quite calm, and the beach is pebbly. This is good as it means you don't get covered in sand but it's hard on your feet.

Miguel: What is the worst journey you have been on?

I can't think of one particular journey, but I hated the one I had to work about two years ago. It was a nightmare. It was by train and the carriage was always crowded and hot. In the summer you couldn't breathe and then at the end of it I had to do an awful job.

Samantha: What kind of books do you like to read?

I used to read a lot of novels, mainly historical fiction. Now, I tend to read non-fiction. I like biographies of famous people from history, especially ancient history and I enjoy books that cover military events and campaigns.

Joe: Who is your favourite writer?

I don't have one writer that I read a lot but since school, I have always enjoyed Thomas Hardy. I suppose the reason for this is that he writes about the area that I am from, although his novels are set in Victorian times.

Ferdinand: What websites do you use?

Apart from social media websites like Facebook and Instagram, I use the BBC website quite a bit for news, weather, and articles on the sport. Wikipedia is especially useful too, especially for checking information or for following a topic or person.

Sally: How do you keep fit?

When I'm not rowing, I go to the gym and work out there. I usually do a mixture of weights and the cardiovascular exercise and I've gotten into HIIT. That's is where you exercise as hard as you can for thirty seconds and then have thirty seconds of light training before you repeat.

John: Where did you go on holiday last year?

I went to Spain and traveled around some of the major cities in the east and south. Mostly I spent a day or two in the city and then had a couple of days sitting on the beach, it works well in Spain because many of the big centers are close to the coast, apart from Madrid.

Mandy: What is the weather like where you are?

This time of the year it's rather changeable. One day the sun is shining the next it's raining and windy. Actually, that can happen in just a few hours some days. Generally, though it is not cold, it can sometimes be cloudy which is boring more than anything.
