

Greetings _____,

I hope you are well.

I am writing to invite your organization, institution, group, or faith community to endorse the Complicit Corporation campaign. Recently, over 100 representatives from Christian organisations met together at the Carter Center, in Atlanta, Georgia, for a strategic conversation. This was one of the core initiatives that came out of that time together.

Palantir: Palantir is one of the world's most advanced data mining companies. The company supports the Israeli government through their AI and surveillance contracts with the Israeli military, and even with public statements. Palantir is also enabling ICE to detain and deport mass numbers of immigrants, so a broader coalition could be formed.

Palantir CEO Alex Karp's open support for Israel's "war" amounts to support for the ongoing genocide, and supplies Israel with AI technology to target and kill Palestinians. According to the German Business and Human Rights Resource Centre, "Palantir was supplying Israel's military and intelligence agencies with advanced and powerful targeting capabilities—the precise capabilities that allowed Israel to place three drone-fired missiles into three clearly marked aid vehicles."

Chevron: Chevron's fossil fuel extraction in the region supports the apartheid and genocide in Palestine. This campaign calls on Chevron to immediately cut its contracts with Israel, and end its role in climate devastation globally. Following in the tradition of the anti-apartheid gas station boycotts of the 1960s and 70s, Palestinians and allies are building a global movement to hold Chevron accountable for its crimes through a coordinated boycott.

Theory of Change: When we create a mass movement of Christians and others in the U.S., exposing complicit corporations and participating in economic boycotts and divestment from corporations that profit from the genocide and occupation, we will diminish the economic pillars that make violence against Palestinians possible. This will create an economic and political incentive for key corporations and key U.S. government officials influenced by those corporations to mitigate their support for the Israeli government and shift U.S. policy to ensure robust humanitarian aid and a permanent ceasefire.
