

The University of Louisville Saddle Seat Team ISSRA Horse Show

Dear Sir or Madam,

On January 29, 2022, the University of Louisville Saddle Seat team is hosting a horse show for the Intercollegiate Saddle Seat Riding Association (ISSRA) at Zubrod Stables in Prospect, KY. The ISSRA allows college students to compete in more affordable horse shows without having to own a horse. Riders learn both sportsmanship and horsemanship because of the ISSRA. Competing as a team makes the individual focus on not just their own development and success in the show ring, but their team members' as well. They also further their skills with horses because they must learn how to ride many different types of horses since there are random draws at the ISSRA horse shows.

Competing teams take turns hosting an ISSRA show, which would not be possible without the support of others. Sponsoring these shows allows students to continue competing in the ISSRA. This is why we are asking for your support of not only the UofL team, but the college students who wish to stay involved with horses or learn more about them.
