Conversation Video Project

Script Directions: (23 points)

- greet each other appropriately
- ask 7 questions (each person answers 7 questions)
    - must ask each others names
    - ¿Y tú? does not count towards your total questions (but you should use it in your script.)
    - At least one "¡Qué....!" statement
    - We have learned how to ask a variety of things this quarter. Use your packets and your warm-ups for help. NO TRANSLATORS. You will not receive credit for anything that you look up on a translator. If you really need to say something and we don't know it, please ask.
- Write your script in SPANISH.
- All answers must be in complete sentences.
- Write it in Google docs. Share with all your partner. When you are done with your rough draft, please share the document with Señora Rose.
- After I have looked over it and commented on it, please make a copy of the rough draft (File - Make a copy) and make the corrections on what will now be your final draft.
- When you are all done with this project you will create a folder in Google Docs titled: hour_conversation_login ID. You will share the entire folder with me which should include (1) rough draft, (2) final draft, (3) movie.

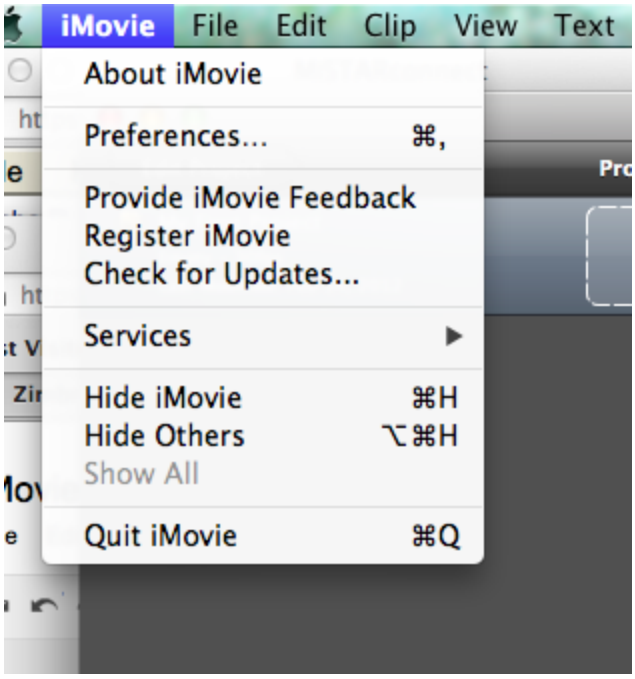

Video Directions (Photo Booth): (16 points)

- Download the green screen picture from my web page. (You will find it under the "iMovie Conversation Project" tab.) Or take a screenshot of the green screen. (Command, shift, 4)
- You will be adding the green screen to your effects page in Photo Booth.
    - The green screen should be on your desktop for ease of use.
    - Open Photo Booth.
    - Click on effects.
    - Go to the last page.
    - You will now be clicking and dragging the green screen into one of the spots titled "user backgrounds."
- When you use the green screen follow these guidelines
    - You may not move your computer around after you set the green screen.
        - I recommend using a chair, garbage can, or table to set your computer on.
        - As soon as your computer is moved AT ALL your green screen will need to be re-set.
    - You will be instructed to move out of the camera path as the green screen is being set up. You will need to do this or the video will not turn out correctly.
    - You should be video taping with the camera facing a wall.

    - If you set up your green screen, and start video taping and it does not work properly:
        - check your lighting - make sure it is bright enough. Any shadows will cause the green screen to not function properly
        - make sure that you are far enough away from the wall that you are not casting a shadow on the wall.
        - If all else fails, move locations.
    - In order to reset your green screen (if you did not follow the above directions), go to “view”, then “reset effects.”
- You should not have one continuous video clip. We will be taking lots of little video clips in Photo Booth and and importing them into iMovie to create our final projects. Try to videotape your conversation so that it actually looks like you are talking to each other versus reading off a piece of paper. If this sounds difficult, use puppets!

in iMovie.

- You will be searching on the Internet for at least one photo in a Spanish speaking country. This will be the background of your video.
    - Take a screenshot of your desired background.
    - Drag it into iMovie. It should be the first thing that you add to your new project.
- In order for us to use the green screen in iMovie, you will need to change your preferences. Go to “iMovie” at the top of your screen. Click on “preferences”. Make sure the check box for “Show advanced tools” is marked.

- You will need to import your videos into iMovie. I found that it is helpful to drag your videos from Photobooth to your desktop. After you have dragged them to your desktop, go back to iMovie. Click on “File”, scroll down to “import”, then “movies”.
- Remember that your picture should already be in your project. You now select the parts of your videos that you want to add to your project. As you select them, drag them to your picture. When you do so, you will be given options. Click on “green screen”.

- In order for this to work, YOUR PICTURE MUST BE IN FIRST. Otherwise it will appear as if you are translucent. You will need to add more pictures of your background depending on the length of your video.
- You also need to add an introduction and ending credits (without last names). You may include bloopers, just make sure that they are not too long.
- When you are done... Go to “share” at the top of your screen. Click on “export as quicktime”. This will take some time, please allow for this. Save as hour_conversation_login ID (of both partners if in a group).
- On Google Drive - Next to the create button, is a button to upload documents. Click on this and upload your video to Google Drive. Share with me and you are done!
- Go to freerice.com and change the subject to Spanish, play games in class (battleship, Go Fish!), or play games here.
