So now we're at hour and a quarter after the launch of the balloon, and we're about to set off at try and find the payload. So I've just been looking on this which shows at the location of the balloon.

And it's heading just over at Braintree and heading in this direction towards Bury St Edmunds. So we're going to leave in the car now and go at see if we can locate it.