

So now we're at hour and a quarter after the launch of the balloon, and we're about to set off to try and find the payload. So I've just been looking on this which shows the location of the balloon.

And it's heading just over at Braintree and heading in this direction towards Bury St Edmunds. So we're going to leave in the car now and go to see if we can locate it.