

What can you do with a degree in playwriting?

Playwright
Screenwriter
TV Writer
Podcaster
Artistic Director
Professor
Graphic Novelist
Critic

Literary Agent
Dramaturg
Advertising Copywriter
Educator
Film/TV Executive
Script Coordinator
Script Consultant
Script Supervisor

Dramatic writing teaches you how to write, but it also teaches you how to see the world through a variety of lenses. Because theatre is a collaborative art, you will learn how to work with others. Our hope is that when you leave Sewanee you will know how to read and write a play, but you will also know how to communicate with others with generosity and clarity, how to give and receive feedback, how to respect our differences, and view the world from multiple perspectives.