

Hannah Johnson is a middle school choir director, and show choir show designer and consultant based in Broken Arrow, Oklahoma. Originally from Ankeny, Iowa, Hannah's educational experiences have shaped her through the years and gave her a passion for the arts. After graduating from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Glenn Korff School of Music — where she studied music education — Hannah took her love for show choir to Oliver Middle School, doubling the size of the program in her second year. Her show choir and curricular choirs have achieved several superior ratings, and 1st place results, as well as producing a variety of 'star performers' and soloists.

Starting in 2019, Hannah began working as a freelance show choir designer. She has helped develop the production of more than 30 junior-varsity, and varsity ensembles from all around the US. Selecting setlists, designing costumes, consulting with arrangers, and developing storylines are all part of what Hannah enjoys most about show choir.
