Special Observer: "Clockwork" 75103994/CX12

Overview: In the recent weeks, several GOC transports started going missing 50 miles north of Pinewood, Canada. Satellite footage revealed what appeared to be an entrance to what is suspected to be an underground facility. The sole survivor from one of the missing convoys found this facility on accident, and stated they saw a Carcinoma logo right past the main entrance, but suspected the facility to be abandoned for a long time.

Parathreat Evidence: Based on testimony from SGT Leon Rhodes, it became evident that we were dealing with a parathreat. The facility, discovered near the area where the convoys went missing, seems to be where the parathreat is hiding. The SGT claimed that a quadrupedal machine, armed with explosive weapons and machine guns, fired a missile upon one of the trucks, and once it destroyed the vehicle with people still inside, it went and eliminated all his men one by one. Bullets did not do anything against it, and he managed to escape by activating a prototype EMP they were transporting, and directing it at the machine.

Suggested Response:

Clearly there is something within that facility that is controlling the machine that destroyed the last convoy. It could be either a Carcinoma project gone wrong, maybe some cult took over the facility, or some KTE managed to hide itself down there. Regardless of the scenario, we must investigate what happened down there, and destroy whatever is lurking in there to prevent further casualties.

Encounter Report/Enemy Description:

It was all quiet when we entered the facility. It was clear that Carcinoma had abandoned that place years ago. We found a terminal in one of the offices near the entrance to the lower levels, and accessed one of the file entries. It mentioned Carcinoma trying to make a machine, controlled by an AI that uses pieces of code from KTE-7900-Moro-Blaecca, so it is safe to say we are dealing with a modified "copy" of it. We went down the stairs to the lower levels, and met a few hostile humanoid robots. These were no different than ordinary human combatants, so dispatching them was not a problem. We entered a laboratory, and the screen on one of the monitors turned on, showing KTE-7900's all too familiar face. It told us about how Carcinoma gave it an upgrade, and gave it the ability to connect itself to any robotic unit to wipe out anything human. It then told us to leave, and promptly sent more robots in. We quickly made our way out of the facility before we end up overwhelmed by the robots, but it sealed itself shut. There seems to still be a lot we do not know.

Results:

Partial success. We could not neutralize the threat, or find out how that KTE got out of control, but we managed to find out what we are up against. Recommending deployment of strike teams into the facility.

Threat Entity Database Entry

Threat ID:

KTE-7504-Blaecca-Templum-Carcinoma

Authorized Response Level: FOUR

Description:

This parathreat is located within an abandoned Carcinoma facility 50 miles north of Pinewood, Canada. It was abandoned by them after a corrupted copy of KTE-7900-Moro-Blaecca had taken over the facility's systems. It shows a clear hatred towards humanity, seeking to erase it. Not much else is known about this parathreat at this time.

Rules of Engagement:

The robots used by KTE-7504 behave like average human combatants, but some machines within this facility appear to be only vulnerable to explosives or EMPs. Adapt accordingly.
