

Radhika Rao Narla, MD

Radhika Rao Narla, MD, is an Associate Professor of Medicine at the University of Washington and the Associate Program Director (APD) for Subspecialty Medicine and Fellowship Preparation for the University of Washington Internal Medicine Residency. In her leadership role, she oversees the subspecialty curriculum and elective strategies across all affiliate sites, ensuring consistent learning objectives and professional development for trainees.

As a mentor and clinician-scholar, Dr. Narla co-leads the Resident Advising Mentorship Program (RAMP) at UW, where she has built an advising infrastructure focused on early career clarity and expanding scholarship and mentor access for residents. She also leads Fellowship Preparation Workshops, guiding trainees through the Subspecialty Fellowship ERAS application process, personal statement development, and virtual interview skills.

