CAST:

Janza Kata (Elisabeth), Szabó P. Szilveszter (Death), Forgács Péter (Lucheni), Lux Ádám (Franz Joseph), Kiss Zoltán (Rudolf)

NOTES:

Single-Cam Proshot. Proving that sometimes emergency covers are great, and sometimes they're... well, interesting might be the most generous word here. Dolhai only played Rudolf up to this point, so the fact that he was called in as e/c for Lucheni shows just how desperate the staff were.

Broadway - 1981 - MP3 untracked

CAST:

Peter Firth (Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart), Ian McKellen (Antonio Salieri), Amy Irving (Constanze Weber), Caris Corfman (Katherina Cavalieri), Michele Farr, Haskell Gordon, Michael McCarthy, Mark Nelson, Mark Torres, Edward Zang, Linda Robbins (Teresa Salieri), Nicholas Kepros (Joseph II, Emperor of Austria), Louis Turenne (Baron van Swieten), Russell Gold (Guiseppe Bonno), Paul Harding (Count Johann Kilian Von Strack), Patrick Hines (Count Orsini-Rosenberg), Philip Pleasants (Major Domo), Ronald Bagden, Gordon Gould, Victor Griffin, Rick Hamilton, Richard Jay-Alexander, Peter Kingsley, Martin LaPlatney, Warren Manzi

NOTES:

This performance was taped right after Peter Firth replaced Tim Curry and Amy Irving replaced Jane Seymour. I saw both casts and Peter Firth (who also starred in Equus) was as good as Mr. Curry and Amy Irving was much better than Ms. Seymour. The rest of the original cast remained. This is my favorite recording because of the legendary performance of Ian McKellan. He was extraordinary. It remains one of my favorite performances I've ever seen.

NOTES:

Derniere of the Dutch Come From Away tour. The cast was obviously very emotional, with Frank messing up a few lines because he was on the verge of tears, Ad starting to cry after the first verse of Stop de tijd and a teary-eyed Qshans during Welkom op de rots (reprise). They (especially Rosalie) could be seen comforting each other, too. Nonetheless, they put on a beautiful final show and were obviously really enjoying themselves too. During the bows, all the covers came on stage too. No speeches were given. Tracked by ichfliegvorbei.

CAST:

Gyorgy Szomor (u/s Jesus Christ), Zsolt Homonnay (Judas Iscariot), Kata Janza (Mary Magdalene), Zoltán Bereczki (Pontius Pilate) Szilveszter Szabo P (Herod)

TRADER'S NOTES:

Gyorgy Szomor played Jesus for the first time in this production. Originally it opened with the original cast of Rock Theatre (Sandor Sasvari, Pal Makrai etc.) but later many young actors took over the roles. I think Zsolt Homonnay's voice is not suitable for the role of Judas. By this time he was the student of the Hungarian Theatre Academy. (Just like Kata Janza, Szilveszter Szabo P and Zoltan Bereczki.)

MY NOTES:

Maybe the time is wrong because in 1991 they were too young...And I find the time is listed as 2001 from another trader's website.

CAST:

Dirk Johnston (Romeo), Iréna Flury (Julia), Tobias Bieri (Benvolio), Kuroschi Abbasi (Mercutio), Philipp Büttner (Tybalt)

NOTES:

Closing night. There is no break. Some of the songs have been switched out of order. (for example: Le Duel and Quel est le Prix happen before Aimer).

The following songs were cut: La Reine Mab, Le Poete, Par Amour, La Folie, Le Pouvoir, Avoir une Fille, Sans Elle, Je Sais Plus

Being very in character, The actor who played Tybalt had a black eye during this performance. (I assume something went wrong during practice, the fighting scenes looked very intense.)

Also everyone was dressed as a Barbie doll during Le Bal. And Tybalt was wearing a very short and a very tight pink dress, which kept riding up during the scene.

So when he is arguing with Lord Capulet during Le Bal 2, he was doing so mostly while standing in his underwear or while trying to tug his dress down. It was truly a hilarious sight.
