

Madotsuki

It's Madotsuki. From Yume Nikki.

Her leap from the balcony did not do what she had hoped it would do. It set her free.... to dream forever.

She found herself trapped in the dream world, with no way out. Stuck with the same sights, the same regrets, with only herself for comfort. The only "real" person.

For twenty years, she wandered. Until finally, a new door appeared....

Was 19 years old when she committed suicide, so she'll look like that forever.

Not quite a ghost, not quite a dream body. Essentially both fused together.

Has become far more proficient with the Effects as the ennui took hold. For a while, they were her only friends. She considers them comforting presences, even if she knows they're just part of her.

Desperate for "real" connection and companionship. Acts silly and crazy to keep people near her, but quick to back off if she believes she's actually starting to drive them off.

Though still somewhat broken, she's not as broken as she would like to believe, or pretends to be. She does her best to pretend she's already unhinged, so nothing can hurt her any further. These twenty years alone have been hard on her....

Still has a somewhat warped sense of humor, and a crooked imagination.

Has forgotten much of her old life, as well as what the outside world was like. "Madotsuki" may not even be her real name.