When children learn how to read, it is a rewarding skill, giving your child a sense of accomplishment and a new skill. With a program such as a phonics reading program, your children can easily master simple skills that will help them to build their vocabulary, and read by easily recognizing letters with word association.

One of the most important things you can do as a parent is to read at bedtime with your child. Children love stories, and eventually they start to become interested in reading. It is at this point that you should look into a phonics reading program. Waiting until your child starts in school will actually put your child in the small percentage of children that have not yet learned to read.

Selecting a good phonics reading program can help your child to learn how to read. It acts as a guide so that the parent does not instruct the child, but merely follows the instructions and relays them to the child. A good program will prepare your child fully to begin reading, within days of starting that program. This is because your child will be motivated by the success they achieve, so much that they will be eager to learn more.
