Introduction

Introduction consists of (in sequence) general background, state of the art as the basis for the scientific novelty statement of the article, scientific novelty statement, and research problem or hypothesis. In the end, the introduction should mention the purpose of article review. Literature review is not allowed in the scientific article format, so it is replaced by the state of the art to prove the novelty of the article.

Literature review

This section contains referred literature and linked to the research and hypothesis development. This section contains about theory and literature referenced and linked to writing. Highly recommended that literature referenced is published the last 5 years with the following order:are puted international journals, national journals accredited national journals, international symposiums, national symposiums, textbooks and daily repute.

Research Methods

Methods are implemented to solve problems, including analytical methods. The method used to solve the research problems is described in this section. (For Conceptual Ideas Without Research Method).

Results and Discussion

This section consists of results and discussion. Every result should be supported by sufficient data. Then, the result should be able to answer the research question or hypothesis stated earlier in the introduction.

Conclusion

Conclusion states the answer of the hypothesis and/or research objective or scientific finding. Conclusion is not the repetition of findings and discussion, but it is the summary of findings as expected in the objective or hypothesis. If necessary, conclusion can also be ended with the next idea to be implemented to the study.

Acknowledgement

Acknowledgement are primarily addressed to research funders or donors. Acknowledgement can also be dedicated to people who contribute to the study.

References

When formatting your reference, plseasefollow the APA reference style (visit link http://www.apastyle.org/). Ensure that the references are strictly in the journal's prescribed style, failing which your article will not be accepted for peer-review. Using standard citation application is preferable (eg. Mendeley, zotero, Endnotes). Please cite maximally last 5 years for the journal article and last 10 years for book references.
