

Basic Phrases

Here are two basic phrases which can be used to refer to other dragons by name, in a third-person and introductory sense. They represent several core functions of the Dragorean language all at once, and are useful phrases to remember first-off before going into anything else within this guidebook.

Vadt dath tosuthep wuk Nuzhahi.

"That dragon of-name is Nuzhahi."

Vidt dath tosuthep wuk Zhumago.

"This dragon of-name is Zhumago."

Possessive Forms

Possessive nouns are denoted by the prefix to-, meaning "of", addended to the noun following the noun which possesses it.

Vadt hamaj tosuthep wuk Kahranu.

"That place of-name is Kahranu."

Vidt hamaj tosuthep wuk Alinth.

"This place of-name is Alinth."

Tense Conjugations

The word "is" can be conjugated in numerous ways to denote tense and subject. The possible conjugations are:

Dragorean	English
wuk	is
nink	are
wuk tu	was
nink ti	were
vaho zen	will be
vaho wiva zenaz	will have been
vaho zensagi	will become
vaho wiva zensagi	will have become

Plurals; "That" Vs "Those", "This" Vs "These"

To refer to multiple subjects, we use volk or valk, which mean "these" and "those", respectively.

Valk hamaj mus nink kizk.

"Those places are big."

Volk azhar mus nink daketh.

"These stars are bright (in a harsh way)."

Putting Tense To Use

Using the phrases above, the following formations demonstrate four examples of the past-tense form of wuk, wuk tu.

Vadt dath tosuthep wuk tu Erimë.

"That dragon of-name was Erimë."

Vidt dath tosuthep wuk tu Balthagor.

"This dragon of-name was Balthagor."

Valk dath tosuthep mus nink ti Azhar kuv Kinazhi.

"Those dragons of-names were Azhar and Kinazhi."

Volk dath tosuthep nink ti Bothane kuv Codanthi.

"These dragons of-names were Bothane and Codanthi."

One More Example (For The Stars)

The same can be applied in other contexts, regardless of noun pluralization.

Vadt dath tosuthep mus nink ti Dairoth kuv

"That dragon of-names were Dairoth and

Vidt hamaj tosuthep mus nink ti

Valk ??
