

Supplee CCJ 230 Chapter 2 Quiz

Which of the following best describes the relationship between theory, research, and policy?

- Theory and research have no impact on policy.
- Policy is solely based on theory and research.
- Theory and research inform policy decisions.
- Theory and research contradict policy decisions.

Which of the following represents the stages involved in creating policy?

- Moral panic, narratives, and folk devils.
- Cost-benefit evaluations, framing, and impact evaluations.
- Crime prevention, policy development, and process evaluation.
- Crime prevention science (CPSc) solutions, policy support, and current events.

How do current events and politics shape policy?

- They have no influence on policy decisions.
- They create moral panic and folk devils.
- They contribute to framing and narratives in policy discussions.
- They prevent the implementation of Crime Prevention Science (CPSc) solutions.

Which of the following relies on policy in Crime Prevention Science (CPSc) Solutions?

- Cost-benefit evaluations.
- Impact (outcome) evaluations.
- Framing and narratives.
- Policy development.

What is the purpose of investigating policy support for Crime Prevention Science (CPSc) Solutions?

- To identify folk devils and moral panic.
- To analyze cost-benefit evaluations.
- To determine the stages involved in policy development.
- To assess the level of policy alignment with CPSc solutions.

Cost-benefit evaluations are a key term related to policy development.

- True
- False

Moral panic refers to the positive impact of crime prevention science solutions.

Group of answer choices

- True
- False

Narratives play a role in shaping policy decisions.

- True
- False

Process evaluation is not relevant to crime prevention.

- True
- False

Impact (outcome) evaluations focus on assessing the effectiveness of policy measures.

Group of answer choices

- True
- False