Putting Together a Roadside Safety Emergency Kit

If you drive at night, in less populated areas, in extreme weather or on long road trips, it is critical that you have a roadside emergency kit in your car. If you have kids of driving age or heading off to college this fall, be sure that they have a kit as well. After all, accidents (and bad decisions!) happen. Make sure you and your loved ones are safe, even if you break down at 11 pm in the middle of nowhere... in the snow. In some scenarios a well-stocked roadside emergency kit will make life a little less inconvenient... in other situations, it might just save a life.

The following items are highly recommended:

Four roadside flares

A warm emergency blanket

Jumper cables

A gallon of anti-freeze

Flashlight with batteries

A well-stocked first aid kit

Pocket knife or a multipurpose tool

Two marshaling wands

Several bottles of water

Nonperishable or long shelf-life foods

Battery operated cell phone charger
