I know it's 10 months after the fact, but given that I wasn't even aware of the original doc until it dropped and recent events, now seems like a good time.

DISCLAIMER: No screenshots will be provided as I have already deleted my DMs with Shayy to try to move on

I had sexual conversations and the like with Shayy almost exactly since I turned 18, albeit largely of my own accord. I was young, inexperienced, and frankly desperate for attention and validation. Nothing was ever strictly non-consensual between us, as I was under the impression I was just messing around with someone I would've considered a friend. Hearing what they did to others makes me sick to my stomach and I see everything we did do in a different light now. The main thing I notice looking back is that when I would say no, they would at times still push before finally relenting. I also remember a time when a friend of mine said that they noticed them having a particular fixation on me over others.

Additionally, anyone who is familiar with my YouTube presence know that I had made fan edits of them that have since been privated. One such video was actually featured in what was their most popular video, with the only credit being a small bit of text in the corner. So take this as my public warning: I do not consent to that edit being public, especially in one of their videos. If that video comes back up like they say they plan to do, I will try to take action through the YouTube Copyright claim system.
