Passage from the text/Quote	Page #	Comment including so what	Type of Entry
Her light coat was cinched with a belt, the only burst of color in an otherwise bland London rain-scape; the city was full of uniforms—soldiers, sailors, airmen. The entire world had gone drab. Although she had lived in England for much of her adult life, Odette never shed her Continental air, nor did she care to; frosty Britain seemed indifferent to sex and to women	5	I can infer that she is living in a depressing atmosphere and there is not a lot of colors i know this because they use words like drab and colorless	Infre
