Louis Flamel

Louis is a bartender, from a family of bartenders. He grew up in a safe town with loving parents, but with the stories of adventure from the patrons he grew up on and the part his parents played in them, he decided to grab life by the horns and find somewhere he could be of help.

Appearance

Unless the establishment he works at requires a uniform, he'll wear some comfortable green and brown clothes, complimenting his long hair and bright eyes. He has a heavy fur coat in case it gets a bit too cold to go back home in his usual cropped dress shirt. His boots look sturdy but have signs of heavy wear from walking pretty much all day, either travelling or serving drinks.

Louis Flamel

Personality

The main motivation behind Louis' actions is usually curiosity. He'll try anything at least once and wants to be aware of all the gossip he can..
He's often trying to prove his usefulness, in order to live up to his family name and that can lead him to getting in trouble, either with people with actual bad intentions, or just getting caught trespassing on a hunch.

Biography

⚠️ Trigger Warning: Insert trigger warning, if applicable

Background

Louis grew up in his parents' tavern, the Procope cafe. The cafe was a spot that frequently saw mercenaries and heroes who had fought for the liberation of the town a few decades before Louis was born. It had served as a base of operation during that time.

His family are all followers of Cayden Cailean and it is no coincidence that they were the ones at the service of heroes during a time of conflict.They believe it's their role to assist the people who save the day, providing them shelter and a cold drink after battle.

Early Life

When he was a kid, Louis' father brought him to an anniversary of the liberation, to tell him what happened and the role he'll have to take on one day. Pointing at familiar faces on a cart waving at the crowd, his father told him in detail a story he'd never heard before. A moment of weakness from these heroes, they came to the bar after fleeing from a fight, chased by guards. His father had to hide them and keep the guards occupied while they were in the cellar getting stitched up.

This was the actual family business, not the tavern but the responsibility that comes with it, to assist the heroes so that they can defeat whatever evil they are after.

Current

Knowing the duty his family has. And believing wholeheartedly in it, he decided to leave the Procope cafe behind, as much as he loves it, and find somewhere he could rise to the same occasions his parents did.

He travelled from town to town, staying a few months in each, working as a bartender and leaving once he had enough money and was sure he was not needed.
