

The south was a stormy cloud covered with hate, segregation, and discrimination, but Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was the sunshine in the sky with love and independence. Dr. King was a hero who changed the lives for future generations by having non-violent protests and delivering his most famous speech, "I Have a Dream", which inspired the end of segregation and discrimination. Even though people were threatening Dr. Martin Luther King Jr, he still stood up for what he believed in. Without the legend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr, we would still be in a world with segregation and without equal rights.

In my own words, Dr. King's dream is for all Americans to not be segregated and to have equal rights. His powerful speech influenced thousands of people by standing up for them and wanted them to have equal rights. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr's dream was to end segregation, discrimination, and to have equal rights for everyone. Dr. King wanted all Americans not to be judged by the color of their skin, but by their character. This brave hero made -a path for all Americans to have equal rights, to not be segregated, and to not be discriminated against.

Dr. King envisioned a society free from discrimination and prejudice. I think this means the world would be a better place to live in. There wouldn't be any prejudice and discrimination. I can learn about other people's cultures because it allows me to respect and connect with them. The world would be more inclusive with people from different cultures. I can continue to work towards realizing this dream by including people and being kind to everyone.

My grandma, Gesney, inspires me to live out Dr. King's dream. She inspires me because she came from Colombia to this country in search of opportunities to live the American dream. As a young girl, she went to school to learn English while working multiple jobs. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. wanted people to have the opportunity of living the American dream and my grandma eventually followed her dreams. She raised a family, got a house, got married. Her dreams became reality because she was given the opportunity to live out her aspirations. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. had a dream and so did my grandma. They inspire me to live out mine.

Dr. King was a hero who changed the lives for all Americans to end segregation and discrimination. He had non-violent protests and gave his influential speech, "I Have a Dream". He tried to get independence for all Americans. Since Dr. King was courageous and stood up for what he believed in, he helped end the bad storm of segregation. To live out his dream, I can continue to be the sunshine that spreads love and kindness to everyone.
