

When trying to log in on a computer to the New Virtual University system, an error appears:

Access blocked: dziekanat-oauth application can be used only in the organization

If the system does not ask for a password and shows the error as below, it means that you are using a private Google account and you are not logged in your academic email account, which looks like: student_number@amuz.lodz.pl (e.g. 1234@amuz.lodz.pl)

In the above case, to log in to the New Virtual University, you must log out of your private Google account and log in to your academic email account. Alternatively, you can use different Google identities and switch between them. Then you must remember to use the identity assigned to the academic email account when you open the New Virtual University system. Another way to solve this problem is to use different browsers (such as Chrome and Firefox). One identity will be used for the private account, the other one – for the academic account.
