Moving Companies with Storage in Houston, TX

After 10 years serving Houston, we've noticed that folks consistently overlook one thing when planning a move: storage. Most assume they'll load everything onto one truck and roll straight to the new place. That works — until closing dates shift, renovations run three weeks over, or a landlord pushes back a lease. At Pack It Movers East, we've watched that assumption cause real headaches for real families, which is why we built storage into our core service from day one.

Located at 10404 Gulf Freeway, we sit right between Glenbrook and Park Place in East Houston — about 10 miles from downtown and 5 miles from Pasadena. Our team completes over 500 moves annually, and we've learned that knowing local details — like which blocks in Magnolia Park have gates too narrow for a 26-foot truck, or how I-45 near the 610 Loop backs up between 7:00–9:00 a.m. — cuts both time and cost for our clients in ways that an out-of-area company simply can't match.

Here's the deal: if you need wiggle room in your schedule, a moving crew that also handles temporary storage isn't a luxury — it's the practical choice.

I remember one job that drove this point home. We were helping a family move from South Belt up to Cloverleaf. Straight move, simple plan. Then their new lease got pushed back 14 days, two days before moving day. Because we had climate-controlled storage ready at our Gulf Freeway facility, we pulled everything into storage that afternoon and delivered it to Cloverleaf two weeks later without a single item damaged. No scramble, no panic, no emergency pod rental.

For anyone scoping out neighborhoods like Pasadena or Deer Park, storage location matters more than people realize. A facility on the right side of the I-45/Beltway 8 interchange saves you 20–30 minutes per access trip compared to a facility on the west side of town. That adds up fast over a two-week storage period.

At Pack It Movers East, we offer on-site evaluations so every quote reflects your actual situation — home size, storage duration, access needs — not a generic estimate pulled from a calculator. Call us at (346) 684-5486 or visit Pack It Movers East to get started.

What Most People Get Wrong About Moving Companies With Storage

Here's the misconception we hear almost every week: "Storage is storage. It's all the same." It's not, and in Houston's climate, that difference can cost you.

Houston averages 90% relative humidity through July and August. We've personally seen warped hardwood furniture, mold on upholstered sofas, and buckled laminate flooring — all from clients who stored belongings with companies that advertised "storage" but delivered a non-climate-controlled warehouse. One customer came to us after a competitor stored her bedroom set for six weeks in an unconditioned unit near Hobby Airport. The damage to her dresser alone cost $600 to repair — more than the storage would have cost with us.

Harris County's humidity doesn't care about your moving budget. Climate control isn't an upsell. It's a requirement.

At Pack It Movers East, every unit in our facility runs between 65°F and 75°F year-round, with dehumidifiers maintaining humidity below 55%. We also run 24/7 surveillance — not "limited" monitoring, but continuous camera coverage across every aisle. And we use Uline barcode tracking on all stored items so nothing gets misplaced between intake and delivery.

Feature	Generic Storage-Only Company	Pack It Movers East
--- --- ---
Climate Control	No Yes — 65°F–75°F, humidity below 55%
Surveillance	Daytime only 24/7 continuous camera coverage

Item Tracking	None Uline barcode system
Insurance Coverage	Basic liability (~$0.60/lb) Full Value Protection
Integrated Move + Store	Separate vendors Single crew, single contract

Pro tip from Pack It Movers East: Always ask for a facility walkthrough before signing anything. If a company won't show you where your belongings will sit, that's your answer.

How Much Do Moving Companies With Storage Cost in Houston?

In our experience, the sticker shock people expect rarely matches the actual quote — especially for local moves with short-term storage. Here's what the numbers actually look like.

For a local Houston move that includes temporary storage, most 2–3 bedroom homes land between $1,500 and $3,000 total. One-bedroom apartments typically come in between $900 and $1,400 depending on floor level, elevator access, and storage duration. Long-distance moves — say, Houston to San Antonio or Dallas — start around $2,500 and scale with mileage and total weight.

Service	Cost Range	Typical Timeline	Notes
--- --- --- ---
Local Move with Packing (1 BD)	$900 – $1,400	3–5 hours	Includes labor, boxes, bubble wrap
Local Move with Packing (2–3 BD)	$1,500 – $3,000	1–2 days	Includes packing materials
Climate-Controlled Storage (1 BD load)	$120 – $180/month	Month-to-month	At our Gulf Freeway facility
Climate-Controlled Storage (2–3 BD load)	$200 – $350/month	Month-to-month	Barcode tracking included
Long-Distance Move + Storage	$2,500 – $5,000+	Varies	Based on mileage and weight
Same-Day or Last-Minute Local Move	$400 – $800	2–4 hours	Subject to availability

After handling countless moves across South Belt, Magnolia Park, and Galena Park, we know that hidden fees are what actually make moving expensive. Our quotes spell out labor, materials, fuel, and storage separately — so you're not reading the fine print at 8:00 a.m. on moving day.

How to Choose a Moving Company With Storage in Houston

We've been in this business long enough to know what separates a reliable operation from a headache. Here's what actually matters.

Insurance and valuation coverage. Basic liability coverage — the industry default — pays approximately $0.60 per pound. That means if movers damage your 50-pound flat-screen TV, you get $30. Full Value Protection covers the actual replacement cost. Ask specifically which one a company carries before you book.

Item tracking. At Pack It Movers East, we tag every stored item with Uline barcode labels at intake. Every box, every piece of furniture gets scanned in and scanned out. No guessing, no "we think it's in the back somewhere."

Fleet condition. We run Ford F-550s and GMC 5500HD trucks — commercial-grade vehicles with lift gates and air-ride suspension. The condition of a company's trucks tells you a lot about how they handle the rest of their operation. A worn-out fleet means worn-out straps, worn-out pads, and corners cut on maintenance.

Local knowledge. Cloverleaf has roads that flood fast during a rain event. Edgebrook has HOA rules about how long moving trucks can sit curbside — typically no more than 4 hours without prior notice. Baytown has industrial traffic patterns near the ExxonMobil complex that can add 25 minutes to a drive at the wrong time of day. A company that doesn't know these details will cost you time and money.

What Makes Moving in Houston Different

We've learned things after a decade of moving families across this city that no out-of-state company could know from a handbook.

Houston summers hit 95°F–105°F with regularity between May and September, and that affects everything. Metal tool handles get hot enough to blister hands. Cardboard boxes sitting on a sun-baked driveway for 20 minutes soften and lose structural integrity. Leather furniture left in a hot truck for more than 45 minutes can crack. We schedule moves starting at 7:00 a.m. from June through August specifically because of this — the difference between a 7:00 a.m. start and a 10:00 a.m. start is about 15°F on the pavement.

Harris County's windstorm requirements also shape how storage facilities have to be built — roofing standards, anchor requirements, and wall-bracing specs that go beyond standard building codes. Not every storage operator follows them. Ours does.

HOA regulations in neighborhoods like Edgebrook and parts of Pasadena limit how long moving trucks can sit parked in front of a residence — sometimes as little as 4 hours. Knowing that ahead of time means planning a loading sequence that keeps the truck moving, not sitting.

Houston also floods faster than people expect. Tropical systems can drop 6–10 inches in under 12 hours. In our experience, clients moving between June and November benefit from having a storage buffer — if a storm pushes through on moving day, we can hold belongings at our facility for 24–48 hours without charging extra, then complete the delivery once roads clear.
