

Exposition	Rising Action	Climax	Falling Action	Resolution
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Characters- The Mandarin</li> <li>● Settings- The orange shaped city, not a very advanced society</li> <li>● Background Information- The name of the other city is Kwan-Si, and “Kwan” is a Korean word, so the villages must be in Korea.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● What is the struggle, complication, problem or conflict?- The Mandarins of the two villages keep changing their city walls and the competition completely shuts down the cities because everyone is working on the walls and not focusing on their work.</li> <li>● Is it internal or external?- The problem is external because the opposing forces are the two villages.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Using lots of details, describe the confrontation on the main character has with the conflict.- The Mandarin of the village with the orange shaped wall found out the Mandarin of Kwan-Si changed his wall to a pig, and he thought the pig symbolized it eating the orange. They went back and forth making their wall into something better than the other wall. It was</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● What is the outcome of the confrontation on scene?- The cities are shut down because both of their populations are working on the walls.</li> <li>● Who is impacted by what happened?- All the towns people are affected because they are starving, hungry, and not making money.</li> <li>● What new problems or action have developed?- The cities are not producing anything and they</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● How does the story end?- The story ends with the Mandarins of both cities agree with the daughter that they should build walls that support each other.</li> <li>● How is the conflict resolved?- One city creates a wall that is a golden kite. The</li> </ul>

		the daughter's idea to combat the other city.	both can't make money.	other city creates silver wind. Without each other, they are not beautiful and serve no purpose. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• How is the main character changed?- He realizes cooperation is the best thing for success.</li><li>• How are others in the story changed?- They cooperate as well.</li></ul>
--	--	--	-------------------------------	--

