

Agreement with Distant Students

As this document disallows any editing, please save it at first, read it, type your name at the bottom of the agreement, save it as a google document and enter the link to it HERE. And our cooperation can begin.

Dear Students, welcome to our course of English for International Studies, conducted in your case in the form of distant study.

In order for our cooperation to run smoothly and your studies to be efficient, let us agree on the following terms:

- Make sure to read all the mass emails I will send throughout the semester to your faculty email.
- Check our course JLB007 in SIS. You'll find our course syllabus there and all the necessary information, including the passwords to enter Moodle.
- Comply with all the deadlines.
- It's easy to lose track of the course routine when you're involved in distant studies. Therefore, you really need to go out of your way to be well organized and pick up your own routine.
- Ideally, find a mate in our course who attends our on-site classes and who you can communicate with. This could help you stay in touch and be informed.
- Remember that every single week you have to submit a fully completed Vocabulary sheet via MOODLE 1.
- A link to our course in Moodle:
<https://dl1.cuni.cz/user/index.php?id=10559>
- You will also find writing assignments in Moodle and their deadlines.
- Worksheets form the backbone of our classes, you can find them in our SIS files. You do not need to submit Worksheets via Moodle, but make sure to fill them out for yourselves.

- As for the Photo Project, send the photos via email with your written commentary - this written commentary should roughly equal a 4 to 5-minute-long verbal commentary.
- As for substituting the in-class Great Speeches presentations, you'll be assigned a compensatory task for it in the course of the semester.

Please type your first and last name below, save as a google document, and enter the link HERE.
