Abstract

Abstract should provide background, purpose, methods, results, and conclusions of the paper.

Abstract should be written in one column format and not exceed 250 words. [Garamond 9, centered]

Keywords: Should be written with lowercase letters except abbreviations, each separated by a comma, can be used as clues in searching, and consist of 5 words in maximum. [Garamond 9, justified].

A. INTRODUCTION

This guideline may be found online at the Template page on the NUR EL-ISLAM official website at <https://ejurnal.iaiyasnibungo.ac.id/index.php/nurelislam> It serves as a template for conducting the manuscript for submission to NUR EL-ISLAM: Jurnal Pendidikan dan Sosial Keagamaan. Authors may modify this template for submission purposes.

B. WRITING LAYOUT

The manuscript must be written in Arabic, Bahasa, or English and submitted electronically through the journal's website. To submit, the author needs to log in. There will be no fees for online registration.

1. Word Processing Software

A manuscript must be at least 5,000 words, 15 pages long (including embedded figures and tables), without an appendix, and the file should be in Microsoft Office (.doc or.docx) format. The prepared paper should measure 21 cm by 29.7 cm (A4), with an inside margin of 2.5 cm and an outside, top, and bottom margin of 2 cm. The preprinting process will rearrange the page numbers, so there's no need to change them in this template.

2. Writing Format

The title should have no more than twenty words, be in title case, small caps, bold, centered, use PT Serif Caption font type, font size 10, and be single-spaced. The abstract is acceptable in 9 Garamond, single-spaced, without graphics or tables, and should be 250 words at maximum. Keywords should be single-spaced and justified, with nine garamonds.

C. WRITING STRUCTURE

Following the title, abstract, and keyword, the manuscript should have the following main text sections: introduction, method/material, result and discussion, and conclusion. The acknowledgment and references should appear after the conclusion.

1. Title

The paper's title must be clear and informative. Systems for accessing information frequently use titles. When at all possible, avoid explicit formulas and abbreviations. Academic titles or ranks should not appear in author names. Make it clear who is responsible for managing each step of the pre-and post-publication processes.

2. Abstract

The abstract should be concise, factual, and state briefly the purpose of the research, the principal results and major conclusions. An abstract should be able to stand alone because it is frequently given apart from the article. References should be avoided as a result. Non-standard or unusual abbreviations should also be avoided; however, if necessary, they must be clarified when they are mentioned for the first time in the abstract itself.

3. Keywords

Avoiding general, plural terms and numerous topics is what a keyword should be. Use clarity when using abbreviations; only those that are well-established in the field may qualify. These keywords will be used for indexing purposes.

4. Introduction

State the research goals and give enough background. Avoiding a thorough review of the literature or an analysis of the findings. Clearly define the objectives of your study and explain how you approached the issue.

5. Method/Material

State the study's objectives and provide an adequate background, avoiding a detailed literature survey or a summary of the results. The background of the paper covered in the Introduction should be developed in the Theory section, which also establishes a basis for future research. The Calculation part indicates the application of theory to practice.

6. Result and Discussion

The results need to be specific and brief. The state should avoid repeating the work's findings and examine their importance. Avoid clear of detailed citations and discussions of published articles.

7. Conclusion

A brief Conclusions section, which can stand alone or be a subsection of a Discussion or Results and Discussion section, might contain the study's key findings. The reader should be directed to the paper's key points in the concluding part. A recommendation or suggestion for additional study may also follow it.
