BACKGROUND OF ISSUE

If a group divides into four corners, no one wants to be in a corner by themselves. People don't want to be by themselves or be wrong because it seems like a group of people who are together are usually right. People outside a majority or group don't want to be ridiculed for having a different opinion

1 According to "Herd Behavior" and "The Party," type here.
the way groups of people act can make people question themselves.
what the majority of people do, drastically impacts the individual's decision-making.
people want to fit in.

2 To begin with, The short story "The Party" shows the way groups of people act can make people question themselves

3 In "The Party" a girl isn't invited to a party that all her friends are going to. Everyone at school is talking about the party and getting popularity It makes her doubt herself and she starts wondering

4 evidence from the party

" Why hadn't she invited me? Were my feet too big? No. My face was broken out? Who wants someone with acne at her party? Why did she invite every person in my group but me?" (Munoz Ryan 2)

5 The narrator wonders if it is because of her big feet or acne that she's not invited to the party? She notices everyone in her friend group is invited except for her.

5 Because every person in the narrator's friend group is invited, she starts doubt herself, even worrying about her basic appearance. The group all doing one thing that the narrator isn't doing makes her doubt herself.

2 Also, The article "Herd Behavior" shows the way people act can make people act can make people question themselves.

3 In "Herd Behavior" it explains how animals tend to move in a group when escaping from a predator. It shows how people tend to do the same when in a stressful situation.

4 evidence from herd behavior

"Human herd behavior can be observed at large-scale demonstrations, riots, strikes, religious gatherings, sports events, and outbreaks of mob violence. When herd behavior sets in, an individual person's judgment and opinion-forming process shut down as he or she automatically follows the group's movement and behavior" (Common Lit 1).

5 People's opinion forming, and judgment automatically shut down and follow the group when in stressful, or situation

5 When there are a lot of people doing something it can make people doubt themselves and question their own decision making them sticking to each other

Conclusion

In short, everyone can benefit from taking a risk in themselves without feeling doubt or worry that they will get made fun of for not following people. People could check in with themselves before saying yes to something. And people should think about their behavior with all the people they see. Hopefully, more people will understand what herd behavior is and be more independent.
