

Julius Caesar: Anticipation Guide

Directions: Read each statement below and write whether you Agree or Disagree.

	Agree	Disagree
We are masters of our own fate. We determine what happens to us
It is all predestined. We are not in control of our own lives.
Loyalty to friends is more important than doing what is right for your country.
Doing what is right for your country is more important than your relationships with people who love you.
We may be smart but if we don't listen to what the world is telling us we won't make the right choices.
It is important for a leader to be a honorable (a good person)
A leader must sometimes bend the rules, tell lies, and cheat.
A leader must compromise to get things done.
Important leaders must make decisions on their own.
It would be better to kill yourself than to be captured in battle and made fun of on the street.
When people make decisions, they understand the consequences.
When politicians make big decisions--like starting a war--it's hard for them to know what the consequences will be. They may get what they want and they sometimes make a mess.

Journal: Which of the above statements touched you? Explain how and why.
